and a noted York Manuale from beginning of 15th century. Stonyhurst has a processional of the Lichfield diocese, 14th-15th century.

Of non-British interest, among the more precisely located material is a calendarium with private prayers from the Besançon region, dated to the mid-15th century and conserved at Rugby School (Bloxham MS 1011). Sheffield's Graves Art Gallery has a mid-13th century psalter formerly at the Augustinian priory of Gouy-en-Ternois near Arras and a noted Missal of the Paris diocese, dated to the earlier 14th century and formerly possibly at the Chateau de Vincennes in the reign of Charles V. Stonyhurst College has two missals of the Liège diocese, one dated to AD 1472, and another to the later 15th century, and for use in the Tongres area. In addition its possesses Officia liturgica of Hieronymite nuns of Bergamo diocese 'probably in an abbey dedicated to, or with a special veneration for, St Katherine', from the late 15th century and a festive Processional for Dominican nuns of the priory of St Louis at Possy, dated to later 15th century. St Edmund's College at Ware has a noted missal of mid-15th century, for the Utrecht diocese, and a fascicle of late 15th-century Masses for the Lyons diocese. Wigan Public Library possesses a Gradual for the Aosta diocese, of 15th-16th centuries. York Minster has a Manuale of the 15th-16th century for St Laurence's church in Nuremberg, which was still at Nuremberg, in the City Library, in 1786. Finally, the Cranston Library at Reigate parish church in Surrey has a calendarium and psalter from the Verona region, dated to the mid-fifteenth century.

While a good many of these manuscripts are already known from other published surveys, they are here to be found with fresh and authoritative descriptions and references are furnished to published catalogues and studies. Details are also given where available of sales of manuscripts, as in the disturbing case of the twenty-four medieval manuscripts from Upholland College sold at Christie's on 2 December 1987. As can be appreciated, the completion of such a catalogue is a lengthy business. Apart from the meticulous examination and description of manuscripts, the travel necessitated in visiting not always accessible locations, and this in the middle of a busy professional life with many other commitments, cannot be easy. Dr Piper is to be congratulated on the seeing through to publication with high competence of this fourth volume, of which he is responsible for a goodly part of the descriptions. We can only hope that the index volume will not be long in following.

THE WORK OF THE CONSILIUM IN THE REFORM OF ROMAN RITE EPISCOPAL ORDINATION: 1965-1968

In hac dissertatione illustratur et documentis congrue perpenditur processus quo Coetus a Studiis 20 et Consilium ad exsequendam Constitutionem de S. Liturgia restitutionem curaverunt rituum ordinationis episcopalis usque ad promulgationem editionis typicae De ordinatione Diaconi, Presbyteri et Episcopi (a. 1968). Integer processus inquiritur iuxta octo documenta quibus iter instaurationis eorundem rituum denotatur.

Dissertatio haec publici iuris fit duabus vicibus.

By the Apostolic Letter «Sacram Liturgiam» given motu proprio on 25 January 1964, Pope Paul VI entrusted the work of implementing Vatican Council II's call for liturgical reform to the Consilium ad Exsequendam Constitutionem de Sacra Liturgia [hereafter «Consilium»][1]. According to a 29 February 1964 letter of Cardinal Amleto Cicognani (then the Vatican City Secretary of State) the Consilium's tasks were fourfold: 1) to propose candidates for appointment to study groups [coetus a studiis] for the revision of the liturgical rites and books; 2) to supervise and coordinate the work of these study groups; 3) to prepare an instruction on Sacram Liturgiam; and 4) to respond to bishops' conferences and others on the correct implementation of Sacrosanctum Concilium[2].

Revision of the rites for the sacrament of order was entrusted to Quod opus ut ea qua par est sapientia et prudentia peragatur, peculiarem condimus Commissionem, quam appellant, cuius praecipuae erunt partes, ut ipsius Constitutionis de sacra liturgia praecepta sancte perficienda curet». Enchiridion Documentorum Instaurationis Liturgicae I (1963-1973) [hereafter EDIL], ed. For a detailed account of the inception of the Consilium see: Piero Marini, «La nascita del "Consilium ad exsequendam Constitutionem de Sacra Liturgia"», Ephemerides Liturgicae 106 (1992) 289-318; 107 (1993) 401-439.

The Consilium was organized into two groups: the Commission proper (consisting mostly of cardinals and bishops who had deliberative votes) and a pool of «consultors» and «advisers» (experts who formed the various study groups and/or reviewed the study groups' work). A list of the members of the Commission proper may be found in International Commission on English in the Liturgy, Documents on the Liturgy: Conciliar, Papal, and Curial Texts [hereafter DOL] (Collegeville, MN: The Liturgical Press, 1982) 614, p. 78 and Annibale Bugnini, The Reform of the Liturgy 1948-1975, trans. Matthew J. O'Connell (Collegeville, MN: The Liturgical Press, 1990) 942-944; a list of the consultors and advisers appears in Bugnini, Reform, 944-952.

the Consilium's Study Group 20, but early in the revision process a special study group was created to deal with the reform of the minor orders[3]. Study Group 20 proper confined its attention to the reform of the rites of ordination to the episcopate, presbyterate and diaconate. Bernard Botte, a Belgian Benedictine from Mont César (Louvain) and professor at the Institut Supérieur de Liturgie (Paris), served as project manager [relator] for Group 20[4]. Bruno Kleinheyer, a professor at the major seminary in Aachen noted for his magisterial study on the historical development the Roman rite's ordination rituals[5], served as secretary. Members included: Joaquím Nabuco, a Brazilian prelate and author of a standard commentary on the Roman Pontifical[6]; Cyrille Vogel, a professor at the University of Strasbourg noted for his studies in medieval liturgy and the critical edition of the Romano-Germanic Pontifical[7]; Emil Lengeling, a professor of liturgy at the University of Munster (Germany); and Pierre Jounel, professor at the Institut Supérieur de Liturgie (Paris). Joseph Lécuyer, a professor of theology at the Lateran University (Rome), joined the group after 22 June 1966.

The purpose of the present study is to document the process by which Study Group 20 and the Consilium revised the rites of episcopal ordination leading to the 1968 promulgation of the editio typica of De Ordinatione Diaconi, Presbyteri et Episcopi [hereafter ODEP 1968]. This process will be re-constructed from eight documents: 1) Schema 102 «De Consecratione Episcopali», dated 10 September 1965 and discussed at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium (22 November 1965); 2) Schema 102, Appendix «De Impositione Manuum in Consecratione Episcopi», dated 8 November 1965 (background material for the 22 November 1965 discussion); 3) Schema 150 «De Consecratione Electi in Episcopum», dated 5 April 1966 and discussed at a meeting of the Consilium's relatores in preparation for the seventh plenary session of the Consilium; 4) Schema 180 «De Ordinatione Diaconi, Presbyteri, Episcopi», dated 29 August 1966 and discussed at the seventh plenary session of the Consilium (6 October 1966); 5) Schema 180, Addenda «De Ordinatione Diaconi, Presbyteri, Episcopi Addenda et Corrigenda», dated 1 October 1966 (supplementing Schema 180 for the 6 October discussion); 6) Schema 220 «De Ordinatione Diaconi, Presbyteri, Episcopi» (dated 31 March 1967), a draft sent for commentary to the Congregations for the Doctrine of the Faith, the Sacraments, and Rites as well as to Paul VI; 7) Schema 270 «De Ordinatione Diaconi, Presbyteri et Episcopi» (dated 1 February 1968); and 8) the ODPE 1968 itself[8].

1. Schema 102 (De Pontificali, 5)

After an initial meeting in Trier (3-5 August 1965), Group 20 prepared a report for discussion at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium to be held 22-23 November 1965[9]. Entitled «De Consecratione Episcopi» and dated 10 September 1965 (though discussed in plenary session on 22 November 1965), the first schema of Group 20's report contains two sections: a list of the fundamental principles for reforming the rite of episcopal ordination[10] and an inventory of twenty-two questions on topics related to episcopal ordination for debate at the Consilium's plenary meeting.

In its discussion of fundamental principles guiding the reform of the rites of episcopal ordination, Schema 102 notes that Sacrosanctum Concilium [hereafter SC] 25 and 76 provide the fundamental mandate for the revision of the rites of episcopal ordination, while SC 23/1, 30, 31 and 34 furnish the general norms guiding such a revision. Five desires from the preconciliar consultation of bishops and religious superiors, dicasteries of the Roman Curia and Catholic institutions of hi-

[8] Msgr. Frederick McManus, a consultor to the Consilium during the period under study, provided the archives of the International Commission on English in the Liturgy with copies of these schemata, in many cases marked with his handwritten annotations. Mr. Peter C. Finn, Associate Executive Secretary of ICEL, provided me with copies of this archival material. I am grateful to both for their generosity in making the documentation available for this research project.

ODPE 1968 appears as Pontificale Romanum ex decreto Sacrosancti Oecumenici Concilii Vaticani II instauratum auctoritate Pauli Pp. VI promulgatum DE ORDINATIONE DIACONI, PRESBYTERI ET EPISCOPI. Editio Typica (Urbs Vaticana: Typis Polyglottis Vaticanis, 1968).

[9] The participants and agenda of the sixth plenary session of the Consilium appear in "Sexta Sessio Plenaria «Consilii»", Notitiae 2 (1966) 3-5.

[10] Following the terminology of the Roman Pontifical then in use, the schema refers to episcopal «consecration»; I use the terminology confirmed in the 1968 rites by which «ordination» is applied to bishops as well as presbyters and deacons.

gher learning are then presented as explicit influences on Group 20's work: 1) simplification of ceremonies and texts; 2) reform of the traditio instrumentorum and vesting ceremonies; 3) revision of the content of the episcopal address to the ordinands; 4) updating of liturgical texts reflecting an outmoded understanding of order; and 5) use of the vernacular in episcopal address. After sketching an outline of the rite in the Roman Pontifical then in use, the schema catalogues directives from the «Instruction on the Proper Implementation of the Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy» (art. 60) and the «Rite to be Followed in the Concelebration of Mass» (chaps. 123-126, 128, 131-132) touching upon episcopal ordination.

Schema 102 organizes the twenty-two questions posed to the Consilium under four headings: 1) the essential sacramental rite; 2) the explanatory rites; 3) the preparatory rites; and 4) the connection of the rites of episcopal ordination and those of the Mass. Prefacing each question is a brief summary of the «state of the question» from theological, historical and pastoral perspectives.

1.1. Quaesita concerning the essential sacramental rite

Six questions concern the essential sacramental rite[11]. First, Schema 102 remarks that the imposition of hands in the rite then in force takes place before the prayer «Propitiare, Domine...». Historical investigation indicates that this prayer formerly concluded the litany; it does not contain the verbal form of the sacrament according to Pius XII's teaching. Therefore the schema asks whether the imposition of hands might be made immediately before the «Preface» of ordination, a text which does contain the verbal form of the sacrament[12].

[11] Explicitly cited as the foundation for discussion of the essential sacramental rite is Pius XII's definition of the «matter and form» of the sacrament of order in his 30 November 1947 Apostolic Constitution «Sacramentum Ordinis»: «...[I]n Odinatione seu Consecratione Episcopali materia est manuum impositio quae ab Episcopo consecratore fit. Forma autem constat verbis "Praefationis", quorum haec sunt essentialia ideoque ad valorem requisita: "Comple in Sacerdote tuo ministerii tui summam, et ornamentis totius glorificationis instructum coelestis unguenti rore sanctifica"». Acta Apostolicae Sedis 40 (1948) 7.

[12] «A: De manuum impositione

a) De positione impositionis manuum

In ritu nunc vigente impositio manuum antecedit orationem "Propitiare, Domine,...", quae oratio olim erat litaniarum conclusio; manuum impositio hunc locum obtinuit per falsam rubricae transcriptionem, in qua de manuum impositione, inter invitatorium "Oremus, fratres carissimi,..." nempe et orationem "Propitiare, Domine,..." uti patet ex Pontificali Romano Germanico (saec. X med.) ubi in aliquibus manuscriptis etiam oratio votiva missae pro Consecrando, "Adesto, Domine,..." et dictum invitatorium ad litanias rubricam de impositione manuum sequuntur.

Second, the schema inquires if the formula «Accipe Spiritum Sanctum», introduced by William Durand in the 13th century to accompany the imposition of hands, might be omitted as a duplication of the consecratory text[13].

Third, noting that the consecratory prayer then in use was split into two parts by an anointing of the candidate's head accompanied by the singing of the «Veni, Creator Spiritus» interposed in the middle of the text, the schema queries whether the anointing of the candidate's head should be repositioned to another part of the rite with the consecratory prayer text thus reunited[14].

Oratio "Propitiare, Domine,..." nullo modo ad ritum sacramentalem pertinet.

Optandum est, ut impositio manuum, i.e. materia sacramenti, immediate praefationem consecrationis, formam nempe sacramenti, antecedat.

QUAESITUM I:

Placetne Patribus, ut impositio manuum fiat immediate ante praefationem consecrationis?», Consilium, Schemata, n. 102: De Pontificali, [5], 7.

"Placet" appears in a handwritten notation after this quaesitum, indicating that the vote at the Consilium's sixth plenary assembly was unanimously in favor of placing the imposition of hands immediately before the consecratory text.

[13] «b) De verbis "Accipe Spiritum Sanctum", quae ad manuum impositionem dicuntur investigatio historica docet, hanc formulam per Pontificale Guilelmi Durandi (saec. XIII ex.) in Consecrationem Episcopalem introductam esse....

Quia haec verba secundum Constitutionem Apostolicam "Sacramentum Ordinis" ad ritum sacramentalem non pertinent, immo in errorem ducunt, ac si istis verbis Episcopus consecraretur, ommittantur.

QUAESITUM II:

Placetne Patribus, ut formula "Accipe Spiritum Sanctum" utpote duplicatio tollatur»? Consilium, «Schema, 102», 7.

After the quaesitum a handwritten note reads: «23 Placet, 5 Non», reflecting the vote at the Consilium's sixth plenary meeting.

[14] «B: De praefatione consecrationis

a) De duobus partibus praefationis

In ritu nunc vigente praefatio consecrationis in duas partes scissa est; unctio capitis (una cum Hymno "Veni, Creator Spiritus") praefationem interrumpit. Unctio capitis (saec. VII in liturgia Hibernensi primo testata...) in praefationem introducta est in ritu gallo-franco saec. IX med... Hoc evenit ex una parte, quia textus praefationis: "... coelestis unguente rore (olim fluore) ... sanctifica" allusionem ad hunc ritum praebere videbatur, ex altera parte quia theologis illius aetatis unctio capitis maioris momenti esse videbatur quam impositio manuum.

Constitutio Apostolica "Sacramentum Ordinis" certitudinem de ritu sacramentali nobis praebuit; ex quo sequitur unctionem capitis ritum explicativum (etsi magni momenti) esse. Convenit ergo ut post impositionem manuum tota praefatio consecrationis preferatur et tum unctio capitis sequatur.

QUAESITUM III:

Placetne Patribus, ut unctio capitis non intra praefationem sed post illam peragatur?» Consilium, «Schema 102», 8.

A handwritten notation just before the quaesitum reads: «Dwyer — preface too long; should be interrupted», indicating a point made during the debate in the Consilium's sixth plenary assembly. Another handwritten notation after the quaesitum reads: «Placet omnes except for Dwyer / Non Placet — 1», reflecting the final vote.

Fourth, the Roman Pontifical then in use mandated that the verbal form of the sacrament (the text necessary for sacramental validity) was to be spoken, although the rest of the consecratory text was to be chanted; Schema 102 argues that such a pattern of recitation and chanting contradicts usual liturgical practice and asks whether the «essential words» could be chanted as well as the rest of the text[15].

Fifth, the schema critiques the consecratory text then in use for not presenting the grace and task of the episcopal office in an optimal way: the «essential words» are embedded in an ornate evocation of the symbolic meaning of the Old Testament high priest's vestments and Aaron's anointing; some phrases (e.g., «may the one who curses you, be cursed himself») sound harsh; other phrases (e.g., «the ministry of reconciliation in the power of signs and wonders») are obscure to contemporary hearers; there is no mention of bishops as ministers of Christ or successors to the apostles. Although the schema only asks if Study Group 2O would be free to explore how the consecratory text could better express the theology found in Lumen Gentium, it is interesting to note that the consecratory prayer for a bishop in the Apostolic Tradition is held up as a possible model[16].

[15] «b) De modo proferendi verba praefationis "Comple... sanctifica"

Ex decreto SCR (10.II.1950)... verba essentialia et ad valorem requisita, formula nempe: "Comple... sanctifica" dicuntur sine cantu. h[sic]aec solutio minus apta videtur, quia stylo liturgiae contradicit. Si nempe verba maximi momenti ex aliis extollenda sunt, liturgia via contraria procedit: e. gr. in ritu servando in concelebratione missae (7.III.1965) perhibentur "Cantus pro concelebratione" pro parte centrali Canonis, ita ut "eadem pars possit etiam cantu proferri". "Cantus" etiam unice ad formulas "Qui pridie", "Simili modo" et "Haec quotiescumque feceritis", immo ad sola verba consecrationis limitari potest....

Ex hoc exemplo elucet modum proferendi verba essentialia formae sacramentalis sine cantu minus aptum esse. Optandum est, ut tota forma sacramentalis, tota praefatio nempe consecrationis, in cantu proferatur.

QUAESITUM IV:

Placetne Patribus, ut etiam verba essentialia praefationis canantur? Consilium, «Schema 102», 8-9.

A handwritten notation after the quaesitum reads: «Placet omnibus», indicating the vote at the Consilium's sixth plenary session.

[16] «c) De textu praefationis consecrationis

Quoad textum praefationis consecratoriae haec dicenda esse videntur: Sacramenta secundum notum illud adagium id efficiunt, quod significant...[The document quotes SC 59].

Ideo etiam, immo praesertim praefatio consecrationis de gratia et munere episcopali puncta essentialia exprimere deberet.

Secundum Constitutionem "Lumen gentium" episcopi sunt successores Apostolorum... [The document quotes LG 20, 21].

Iam vero fatendum est, in praefatione consecratoria liturgiae romanae de hac theologia muneris episcopalis, a Concilio in art cit. adumbrata et in sequentibus articulis involuta, valde pauca inveniri.

Pars prior, scilicet anamnetica praefationis, quae "verba essentialia" continet, loquitur tantum de summo sacerdotio, et quidem modo sat onusto et intricato, exemplum

Sixth, the final question concerning the essential sacramental rite of episcopal ordination deals with the roles of «principal» and «concelebrating» bishops: should all bishops present recite the liturgical texts together or only the principal consecrating bishop with the other bishops silently joining in the laying on of hands[17]. Pars altera praefationis, in qua dona pro Consecrando a Deo impetrantur, praeter aliqua, quae omni fideli optabilia sunt, et alia, quae hodie male sonant ("qui maledixerit ei, sit ille maledictus") vel aliquomodo obscuro intelliguntur ("ministerium reconciliationis... in virtute signorum et prodigiorum") loquitur etiam de muneribus sacerdotalibus, de ministerio nempe reconciliationis et de postestate clavium in remissionem peccatorum; insuper habentur allusiones de muneribus praedicandi, regendi et pascendi.

Nullibi vero sermo occurrit e.gr. de successione Apostolorum et quod Episcopi sunt ministri Christi, cuius partes sustinent.

Cum autem praefatio, quae conflata est de duobus orationibus consecratoriis, romana nempe et gallica..., iam valde longa sit, non expedit, ut adhuc amplificetur.

Quae cum ita sint, examini subici debere videtur quaestio, utrum substitui possit alius textus, qui exprimat melius theologiam munerum episcopalium. Qui textus aut de novo exarandus esset aut sumendus e fontibus antiquis, utique forsitan hic vel illuc leviter mutandis.

Placetne Patribus, ut investigetur, quomodo praefatio consecrationis theologiam episcopatus secundum Constitutionem "Lumen gentium" melius exprimat»? Consilium, «Schema 102», 9-11.

A handwritten notation after the quaesitum reads: «Placet omnibus excepto Dwyer / Antonelli: should be clear what essential words of form are / Confalonieri - should not be reduced too much», indicating points made by speakers in the debate at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium and the outcome of the final vote.

[17] «C: De functione Episcoporum consecrationem concelebrantium

Etsi "ad consecrationis validitatem unum solum sufficere Episcopum... extra dubium est, ...a priscis tamen Ecclesiae temporibus plures Episcopi huiusmodi Consecrationi adstiterunt".... Hic usus omnino retinendus est. Sed quaetiones oriuntur.

Ritus nunc vigens distinguit, quoad episcopos consecrationem episcopalem concelebrantes, inter consecratorem principalem et omnes alios episcopos adstantes ex una parte, ex altera parte etiam inter episcopos "conconsecrantes" et episcopos qui tantum manus imponunt. Quid faciunt episcopi qui tantum manus imponent.

Constitutio de Sacra Liturgia hunc ritum inducens... vere non intendit discriminationem, sed in genere signi ostendit veritatem, de qua Constitutio "Lumen gentium": ...[The document quotes LG 21].

Instauratio consecrationis episcopalis in via a Constitutione de Sacra Liturgia inchohata progredi debet, ne qua discriminatio oriatur. Restauratio antiqui ritus, impositionis nempe manuum ad omnibus episcopis adstantibus adhibendae, tantum gressus primus est.

Nemini non patet, post Constitutionem Apostolicam "Sacramentum Ordinis", in qua de ritu sacramentali definitive actum est, hunc usum quod nempe episcopi conconsecrantes omnes formulas usque ad traditionem libri Evangeliorum inclusive una cum also be addressed in «Schema 102 Appendix» below.)

1.2. Quaesita concerning the explanatory rites

Nine questions concern the «explanatory rites» conjoined to the essential sacramental rite of episcopal ordination. They fall into five groups: questions about 1) anointing the head; 2) anointing the hands; 3) handing over the signs of episcopal office; 4) imposing and handing over a Book of the Gospels; and 5) enthroning.

First, Schema 102 asks if it would be permissible to search for another text to accompany the anointing of the candidate's head; the formula then in use («May your head be anointed and consecrated with heavenly blessing in the pontifical order. In the name of the Father...») was judged deficient in articulating the gift of grace conferred. A text from the Romano-Germanic Pontifical for the anointing of the bishop's thumb is proposed as a possible model for a new formula for the anointing of the bishop's head; in addition the schema asserts that the custom of binding the bishop's head with a cloth after the anointing should be abolished[18].

Consecratore principali dicere debent, inutilem esse. Consequenter nemo optat, ut omnes episcopi, qui manum imposuerunt, omnes istas formulas dicant. Qua de causa — secundum opinionem nostram — Instructio ad exsecutionem Constitutionis de Sacra Liturgia recte ordinandam... solummodo manuum impositionem ab omnibus episcopis postulat, non autem formulam "Accipe Spiritum Sanctum".

Investigatio historica docet, usque ad Saec. XII ex. solum consecratorem principalem verba formae, praefationem nempe consecrationis, protulisse, ceteris episcopis manus imponentibus, sed orationi consecratoris principalis tacite consentientibus....

Etiam in ritibus orientalibus hic modus usque nunc retinetur.... Videtur ad traditionem antiquam Romanam et universalem revertendum esse.

QUAESITUM VI:

Placetne Patribus, ut solus Consecraoor [sic] principalis praefationem et omnes alias orationes et formulas proferat, ceteris Episcopis tacite consentientibus»? Consilium, «Schema 102», 11-12.

A handwritten notation on the quaesitum reads: «1) excepta Praefatione / 2) Praefatio by Consecrator alone», indicating the debate on this topic in the sixth plenary session of the Consilium. No indication of the final vote is given.

[18] «2. De ritibus explicativis...

A) De capitis unctione

Supra... iam dictum est optandum esse, ut capitis unctio non intra sed immediate post praefationem consecrationis peragatur.

Ritus unctionis capitis gratiam in consecratione episcopali acceptam optime exprimit, etsi formula nimis communiser [sic; a handwritten notation corrects to "communiter"] de hac accepta gratia loquitur ("Ungatur et consecretur caput tuum coelesti benedictione, in Ordine Pontificali. In nomine Patris..."). Formula ritus clarius significare deberet donum gratiae in consecratione acceptum. Videtur talem formulam inveniri posse in ritu unctionis manuum..., in verbis nempe:

"Deus et Pater Domini nostri Jesu Christi, qui te ad Pontificatus [in footnote: "vel

Second, understanding the ceremony as an inappropriate duplication of the anointing of hands at presbyteral ordinations (which the document further asserts should be done with chrism rather than the oil of catechumens), the schema asks if the anointing of the candidate's hands in episcopal ordination could be omitted. If so, the schema also notes that the Antiphon «Unguentem in capite...» with its psalm could take the place of the hymn «Veni, Creator Spiritus» during the anointing of the candidate's head; this hymn-text, invoking the presence of the Holy Spirit, was judged inappropriate after the consecratory prayer has already been prayed[19].

Third, a series of questions appeared concerning the treatment melius: Episcopi"] sublimari coluit dignitatem, ipse te Chrismate et mysticae delibationis liquore perfundat, et spiritualis benedictionis ubertate foecundet'.

Quae formula, in Pontificali Romano-germanico primo testata..., ad unctionem nempe pollicis, forsitan pro unctione capitis exarata est, etsi nullum manuscriptum notum est, quod certitudinem dat de hoc usu.... Textus tamen optime interpretari potest de capitis unctione.

Insuper optandum est, ut unctio capitis peragatur liniendo chrismate solummodo summitatem capitis (vel. [sic] si casus fert, frontem) in forma crucis. Ligatio capitis cum mappula ritus inutilis est et omittatur.

QUAESITUM VII:

Placetne Patribus, ut investigetur, quomodo formula unctionis capitis magis apta fiat ad exprimendum donum in Consecratione episcopali acceptum»? Consilium, «Schema 102», 13-14.

A handwritten note on the quaesitum corrects «magis apta» to «aptior» and notes: «Omnibus placet Dwyer incluso», indicating an objection raised during the debate at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium and the outcome of the vote.

[19] «B) De manuum unctione

Unctio manuum e ritu Ordinationis presbyteri in ritum Consecrationis episcopalis introducta est; secundum testes traditionis Romanae unctio manuum in consecratione episcopali non erat iteranda, sed nonnisi peragenda erat, si consecrandus e Diaconatu ad Episcopatum promovendus erat.... Unctio ergo manuum in consecratione episcopali est duplicatio. Secundum ergo principium: "omittantur quae temporum decursu duplicata [sic; a handwritten slash separates into two words: 'decursu duplicata'] fuerunt..." ..., omittenda est. Unctio manuum in Ordinatione presbyteri tamen peragi deberet chrismate secundum usum antiquiorem...; quod et veritas ritus postulat, quia oleum catechumenorum est oleum baptismatis.

Si manuum unctio in consecratione episcopali omittitur, Antiphona "Unguentum in capite..." cum suo psalmo ad unctionem capitis cani posset — saltem si plures consecrandi sunt — loco Hymni "Veni, Creator Spiritus", qui usque nunc post ritum sacramentalem, per quem confertur gratia Spiritus Sancti, canitur, itaque locum minus aptum tenet.

QUAESITUM VIII:

Placetne Patribus, ut unctio manuum cum iam in ordinatione Presbyteri peracta sit, in consecratione episcopi omittatur»? Consilium, «Schema 102», 14.

of episcopal insignia. Could the episcopal ring and pastoral staff be blessed in a quasi-private ceremony prior to the ordination now be simply conferred on the newly-ordained bishop during the ordination[20]? Could the formal ceremony of handing over the mitre and episcopal gloves be abolished[21]? Could another text accompany the ceremony of handing over the pastoral staff[22]?

[20] «C) De insignium traditione

a) De benedictione insignium

in rubricis Pontificalis Romani iam dicitur, ut solummodo adhibendae sint, si insignia non sint benedicta. Optandum est, ut ad abbreviandum ritum omnes istae benedictiones tempore opportuno, ante ipsam actionem sacram, peragantur.

QUAESITUM IX:

Placetne Patribus, ut benedictiones (annuli et baculi Pastoralis) anticipentur quasi privatim, solis traditionis insignium intra consecrationem remanentibus»? Consilium, «Schema 102», 15.

A handwritten note after the quaesitum reads: «Placet», indicating a unanimous favorable vote at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium.

[21] «b) De insignium traditione in genere

Traditio baculi Pastoralis et traditio annuli maioris momenti sunt ad explicandum munus episcopale in consecratione acceptum... [The document quotes LG 20 and 27].

Iam in fontibus saec. V de baculo Pastorali tractatum est...; Isidor[sic; a handwritten notation corrects to "Isidorus"] Hispalensis († 636) loquitur de traditione baculi et annuli in consecratione episcopali...

Ex adverso de traditione mitrae et chirothecarum nihil invenitur in libris liturgicis ante Pontificalem Guilelmi Durandi (saec. XIII ex.)...

c) De traditionibus mitrae et chirothecarum optandum est, ut omittantur, quia "rerum conditionem obsoletam sapiunt"..., quod elucet e formulis rituum: "Imponimus, Domine, capiti huius Antistitis et Agonistae tui galeam munitionis et salutis, quatenus decorata facie, et armato capite, cornibus utriusque Testamenti terribilis appareat adversariis veritatis; etc." (ad impositionem mitrae); "Circumda, Domine, manus huius ministri tui munditia novi hominis, qui de coelo descendit, ut quemadmodum Jacob dilectus tuus, pelliculis hoedorum opertis manibus, paternam benedictionem, oblato patri cibo, potuque gratissimo, impetravit... etc" (ad traditionem chirothecarum).

QUAESITUM X:

Placetne Patribus, ut traditiones mitrae et chirothecarum supprimantur»? Consilium, «Schema 102», 15-16.

A handwritten notation above «traditiones mitrae» reads: «new formula placet omnibus» and one above «chirothecarum» reads: «omnibus exc. Dwyer?», probably indicating that the sixth plenary session of the Consilium voted to retain the handing over of the mitre with a new accompanying verbal formula, but voted (with one exception) to suppress the handing over of the episcopal gloves.

[22] «d) De baculi Pastoralis traditione

investigandum esset, an formula in Pontificali romano-germanico testificata...: "Accipe baculum sacri regimini signum, ut imbecilles [a handwritten notation over the word reads: debiles — perh. better] consolides, titubantes confirmes, pravos corrigas, rectos dirigas in viam salutis aeternae, habeasque potestatem eligendi dignos et corrigendi indignos, cooperante domino nostro Jesu Christo" munus pastorale episcopi melius exprimeret quam formula (similis aetatis...) nunc vigens.

QUAESITUM XI:

Placetne Patribus, ut investigetur, quomodo formula ad traditionem baculi Pastoralis magis apta fiat ad exprimendum munus in consecratione episcopali acceptum»? Consilium, «Schema 102», 16.

A handwritten notation after the quaesitum reads: «Placet», indicating a unanimous favorable vote at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium.

Fourth, other questions were posed concerning the imposition and handing over of the Book of the Gospels. Could the imposition of the Book of the Gospels over the candidate's head be restricted to the time of the imposition of hands and the consecratory prayer[23]? Could the handing over of the Book of the Gospels be placed immediately after the anointing of the candidate's heads[24] and followed by the handing over of the bishop's ring, pastoral staff (and mitre)[25]?

Fifth, two patterns for concluding the rite of ordination are suggested. If a candidate is ordained in the cathedral church of the dio-

[23] «D) De libri Evangeliorum impositione et traditione

a) De libri Evangeliorum impositione

Impositio libri Evangeliorum praeclarus est ritus et ergo retinendus. Sed nulla causa invenitur, cur impositio usque ad traditionem annuli inclusive extendatur. Investigatio historica docet ex antiquissimis temporibus impositionem libri Evangeliorum exstitisse..., sed solummodo durante impositionem manuum (et praefationem consecrationis). Etiam secundum libros liturgicos recensiores (e.gr. Pontificale Guilelmi Durandi: saec[sic] XIII ex.)... impositio libri Evangeliorrnm fit solummodo durante manuum impositione et praefatione consecrationis. Optandum est, ut hic modus restituatur. Ita finis huius ritus, explicatio nempe oneris in consecratione suscepti, melius exprimitur.

QUAESITUM XII:

Placetne Patribus, ut liber Evangeliorum solummodo durante impositione manuum et praefatione consecrationis Consecrando imponatur»? Consilium, «Schema 102», 16-17.

A handwritten notation after the quaesitum reads: «Placet», indicating a unanimous favorable vote at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium.

[24] «b) De libri Evangeliorum traditione

videtur hunc ritum esse retinendum, quia munus episcopale optime exprimitur. In rubricis autem non dicatur "Consecratus tangat librum", sed "Consecratus (duobus manibus) accipiat librum".

Traditio libri Evangeliorum immediate post unctionem capitis peragatur, sequentibus traditionibus annuli et baculi Pastoralis. Haec consecutio rituum immediate ad ultimum ritum explicativum, ad inthronizationem nempe, tendit.

QUAESITUM XIII:

Placetne Patribus ut liber Evangeliorum immediate post unctionem capitis tradatur»? Consilium, «Schema 102», 17.

A handwritten notation after the quaesitum reads: «Placet», indicating a unanimous affirmative vote at the sixth plenary assembly of the Consilium.

Placetne Patribus, ut annulus et baculus Pastoralis post traditionem libri Evangeliorum tradantur»? Consilium, «Schema 102», 17.

A handwritten notation inserts «et mitra» after «baculus Pastoralis», indicating that the response to Question 10 (in which the handing over of the mitre is retained, although a new text to accompany this ceremony may be sought) suggests that this ceremony be grouped with the other traditiones. Another handwritten notation after the quaesitum reads: «Placet», indicating a unanimous favorable vote on the expanded text of the quaesitum at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium.

cese for which he is to serve as Ordinary, immediately after the traditiones he should be seated in the episcopal chair [cathedra]; thereupon the rite of episcopal ordination would conclude with a kiss of peace exchanged between the newly ordained bishop and the other bishops and priests concelebrating. If a candidate is not ordained in his own cathedral church, he is to be seated among the concelebrating bishops; the rite of episcopal ordination would conclude with a kiss of peace exchanged as described above[26].

1.3. Quaesita concerning the preparatory rites

Four questions concern the preparatory rites leading up to the essential sacramental rite of episcopal ordination.

First, while recognizing that a formal presentation [postulatio] of the candidate should be retained as the beginning of the entire rite of episcopal ordination, Schema 102 asks whether the candidate should be presented by two presbyters (as representatives of the church) or two bishops (as assisting «co-consecrators»)[27].

[26] «E) De inthronizatione

Pontificale Romanum distinguit quoad ritum inthronizationis casum, in quo episcopus in propria ecclesia, et casum, in quo non in propria ecclesia consecratur.

Inthronizatio episcopi in ecclesia aliena consecrati cum veritate ritus cohaerere non videtur.

Inthronizatio episcopi in ecclesia propria consecrati fiat immediate post traditionem libri Evangeliorum, annuli et baculi Pastoralis, quia et inthronizatio ritus est explicativus; cathedra enim episcopi signum est muneris praedicandi Evangelium de quo munere Constitutio "Lumen Gentium":... [The document quotes Lumen Gentium 25].

Post inthronizationem, in fine ritus consecrationis Consecratus ad cathedram suam deductus accipiat a Consecratore et omnibus Episcopis adstantibus osculum pacis et det etiam presbyteris forte concelebrantibus.

Episcopus in ecclesia aliena consecratus in fine totius ritus consecrationis deducatur a Consecratore ad sedem Episcoporum concelebrantium et sedeat secundum antiquam traditionem Romanam hac die "super omnes Episcopos"... Etiam in hoc casu osculum pacis finis est totius ritus consecrationis.

QUAESITUM XV:

Placetne Patribus, ut Episcopus in ecclesia propria consecratus immediate post traditiones annuli et baculi Pastoralis ad cathedram suam adducatur, ubi det omnibus episcopis et etiam presbyteris forte concelebrantibus osculum pacis»? Consilium, «Schema 102», 17-18.

A handwritten notation after the quaesitum reads: «Placet omnibus Dwyer excepto», indicating one negative vote on this topic at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium.

[27] «3) De ritibus praeparatoriis...

A: De postulatione

Postulatio quasi initium totius consecrationis omnino retinenda est.

Oritur quaestio utrum Consecrandus Consecratori praesentari debeat vel a duobus presbyteris vel a duobus episcopis.

Constitutio de Sacra Liturgia agens de instauratione Liturgiae inter alia hoc principium generale statuit:... [The document quotes SC 28].

In ritu consecrationis episcopalis nunc vigente duo episcopi, olim "assistentes" ab a. 1950 "conconsecrantes"... nominati, in parte centrale consecrationis vere consecrationem concelebrantes sunt, durantibus ritibus praeparatoriis autem munere consecrando assistendi funguntur. A Consecratore principali, sed etiam — etsi non expressis verbis — ab omnibus episcopis partem in consecratione habentibus postulant consecrationem, i.e. etiam a semetipsis, quod veritati ritus contradicit.

Ut investigatio historica demonstrat, erat antiquus usus Romanus, ut delegati cleri et populi ecclesiae episcopum desiderantis a consecratore, in hoc casu a Pontifice Romano, consecrationem electi postularent... Hic modus etiam in consecrationibus non a Romano Pontifice collatis servatus est, sicut testatur a plurimis libris liturgicis... Postulatio a duobus episcopis proferenda in Pontificali romano-germanico (saec. X ex.) primo testata... et a Pontificali Guilelmi Durandi in liturgiam romanam introducta est...

QUAESITUM XVI:

Placetne Patribus, ut investigetur, a quibus Consecrandus Consecratori praesentari debeat vel a duobus Presbyteris vel a duobus Episcopis»? Consilium, «Schema 102», 18-20.

A handwritten notation after the quaesitum reads: «Placet», indicating unanimous agreement on this point during the sixth plenary session of the Consilium.

[28] «13: De allocutione Consecratoris

In consecratione episcopali nil invenitur de allocutione Consecratoris praeter sententiam unicam: "Episcopum oportet..." (ex antiquo "De officiis septem graduum" VII saec.)...

Constitutio de Sacra Liturgia autem decrevit:... [The document quotes SC 35/2].

Optandum est, ut in rubricis praescribatur allocutio a Consecratore populo facienda de munere episcopali (secundum mentem sententiae dictae "Episcopum oportet...") immediate post lectionem Mandati Apostolici, ante examen Electi.

QUAESITUM XVII: [sic].

Placetne Patribus, ut rubrica provideat in initio ritus allocutionem Consecratoris principalis de munere episcopali»? Consilium, «Schema 102», 20.

A handwritten notation after the quaesitum reads: «Placet», indicating a unanimous favorable vote in the sixth plenary session of the Consilium. A further handwritten notation reads: "Jenny — but not as panegyric on Consecrandus", indicating one of the points made during the discussion.

[29] «C: De examine Electi

Examen Electi est magni momenti. In facie totius ecclesiae Electus voluntatem suam aperit munere suo functurum esse in spiritu Ecclesia» [sic] [.] Examen ergo electi retinendum est.

Locus aptior examinis videtur esse immediate post sermonem Consecratoris de munere episcopali.

Textus examinis videtur abbreviandus esse et abbreviari posse. Insuper quaestio-

Second, the schema inquires if an instruction on the meaning of the episcopal office be given by the consecrating prelate as part of the preparatory rites, probably immediately after the reading of the Apostolic Mandate and before the examination of the candidate[28].

Third, after declaring that the examination of the candidate is of great importance and suggesting that it might most appropriately be placed after the consecrating prelate's address, the schema asks if ways might be found to both abbreviate the examination and make its questions more suitable to contemporary church life[29].

Fourth, the schema questions whether the text of the invitatory might be restored as an introduction to the preparatory prayers, whether the prayer «Propitiare, Domine,...» might be restored as the conclusion to the litany, and whether the litany itself might be both abbreviated and made more appropriate to the occasion[30].

1.4. Quaesita concerning the incorporation of ordination rites in the context of Eucharist

The final set of questions devolve upon the relation of the episcopal ordination rites with those of the Mass in which it is situated.

First, Schema 102 notes that the rites of episcopal ordination then in use were situated at three points in the Mass (before the confession, after the last verse of the Tract, and after the postcommunion prayer) with the essential rites appearing after the last verse of the Tract; the schema asks whether all the episcopal ordination rites

A handwritten notation after the quaesitum reads: «Placet», indicating a unanimous favorable vote on the topic at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium.

[30] «D: De oratione ritum sacramentalem praeparante

Ut iam dictum est... oratio praeparans ritum sacramentalem, impositionem nempe manuum et praefationem consecrationis, immediate praecedat.

Functio orationis "Propitiare, Domine supplicationibss[sic] nostris...", quae erat olim conclusio Litaniarum..., restituatur.

Videtur ad abbreviandum totum ritum consecrationis episcopalis investigandum esse, quomodo litaniae breviores reddi possint, salvis semper intentionibus specialibus "Ut hunc praesentem Electum...", quia in istis intentionibus momentum speciale orationis praeparatoriae exprimitur.

QUAESITUM XIX:

Placetne Patribus, ut investigetur, quomodo litaniae breviores reddi possunt»? Consilium, «Schema 102», 21.

A handwritten notation adds «et aptiores» after «breviores» in the quaesitum, indicating the modification in the question made after discussion by the Consilium. A further handwritten notation after the quaesitum reads: «Placet», indicating a unanimous favorable vote on this topic at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium.

could be unified and positioned between the liturgy of the word and the liturgy of the eucharist[31].

Second, the schema inquires whether minor euchology (collect, prayer over the gifts and postcommunion) and readings proper to the celebration of episcopal ordination should be drawn up for insertion into the Roman Missal[32].

Third, the schema notes its earlier recommendation that a bishop ordained in the cathedral of the diocese for which he is to serve as Ordinary be enthroned on the cathedra as the conclusion of the ordination rites proper. It then queries whether the newly-ordained bishop should then preside over the rest of the eucharistic liturgy[33].

[31] 4) De connexu rituum cum Missa, in qua fit consecratio episcopalis

a) Iam in "Ritu servando in concelebratione Missae" aliquomodo provisum est de connexu rituum consecrationis episcopalis cum Missa (e. gr.: nulla proinde consecrando paranda est capella particularis).... Sed "Ritus servandus in concelebratione Missae" immediate spectat ad concelebrationem, non autem ad consecrationem episcopalem. Hic ergo etiam alia momenta tractanda sunt.

b) Videtur omnes et singulos ritus consecrationis episcopalis uno tractu peragendos esse. Omnes enim ritus consecrationis elementa unicae actionis liturgicae sunt et inter se copulantur. Postulatio tendit ad Mandatum Apostolicum, Mandatum ad allocutionem, allocutio ad examen, examen ad orationem praeparantem, omnes autem ritus praeparatorii ad ritum sacramentalem. Ritus explicativi (inter quos etiam inthronizatio) ex altera parte respiciunt ad ritum sacramentalem; omnes ergo ritus explicativi immediate ritum sacramentalem prosequi deberent. Divisio rituum consecrationis episcopalis in tres partes (ante confessionem, ante ultimum versum tractus, post Postcommunionem) decursu temporum exorta... revidenda esse videtur.

c) Locus aptior omnium rituum consecrationis episcopalis esse videtur non ante ultimum versum tractus... sed inter duas partes Missae, inter liturgiam nempe verbi et eucharisticam, sicut fit pro Confirmatione... et Matrimonio..., si intra Missam celebrantur. Liturgia enim verbi adducit ad sacramentum; ad liturgiam autem eucharisticam quasi ad finem suum tendit consecratio episcopalis, per quam Consecratus instituitur "oeconomus gratiae supremae sacerdotii, praesertim in Eucharistia... qua continuo vivit et crescit Ecclesia"...

A handwritten notation after the quaesitum reads: «Placet», indicating a unanimous favorable vote on this topic at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium.

2. Schema 102, Appendix «De Impositione Manuum in Consecratione Episcopi»

Dated 8 November 1965 and presented as background material for the Consilium's discussion on 22 November 1965, Schema 102 Appendix provides the rationale for changing certain practices in the rite of episcopal ordination. The schema argues against 'the custom of having «co-consecrators» recite the ordination texts in a low voice as the principal consecrator chants or speaks them aloud. It argues in favor of the practice of allowing all the bishops present to impose hands on bishop-elect.

The schema begins with an historical review of the practice of the Roman Rite. From the evidence of the Apostolic Tradition, the Statuta Ecclesiae antiqua, the [Old] Gelasian Sacramentary, and various Roman Pontificals it appears that until the twelfth century the Roman custom was to have all bishops present impose hands on the bishop-elect but to have a single bishop speak the ordination prayer[34]. Changes in this practice occured here and there during the twelfth and thirteenth centuries[35]. The rubric in the Pontifical of William Du- ultimum ritum totius actionis esse debere. Episcopus in ecclesia propria consecratus per inthronizationem locum praesidentialem totius communitatis tenet. Optandum est enim, ut traditio antiqua romana ... quae etiam in Oriente viguit ... restituatur, secundum quam in concelebratione consecrationem episcopalem sequente Episcopus in ecclesia propria consecratus sit celebrans principalis. Hic modus magis respondet menti Constitutionis de Sacra Liturgia [the footnote quotes article 41] et etiam menti Constitutionis "Lumen gentium" [the footnote cites LG 26].

Episcopus vero non in ecclesia propria consecratus non sit in concelebratione celebrans principalis, sed, sicut iam dictum est..., primum locum teneat inter alios concelebrantes.

QUAESITUM XXII:...

Placetne Patribus, ut Episcopus in ecclesia propria consecratus in fine ritus consecrationis ad cathedram suam adductus liturgicae eucharisticae praesideat»? Consilium, «Schema 102», 24.

A handwritten notation after the quaesitum reads: «31 / Placet 26 / Non Placet 5», indicating the vote on this topic after debate at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium.

[34] «Iuxta Traditionem apostolicam Hippolyti c. 2... episcopi praesentes manus electo imponunt, deinde unus ex eis, ab omnibus rogatus, imponens ei manus orationem consecrationis pronuntiat. Idem servatur in Statutis ecclesiae antiquis c. 90...: Episcopus cum ordinatur, duo episcopi ponant et teneant evangeliorum codicem super cervicem eius, et uno super eum fundente benedictionem, reliqui omnes episcopi qui adsunt manibus suis caput eius tangant.

Praescriptio Statutorum, in Sacramentario Gelasiano probata, regula facta est ritus Romani et usque ad saeculum XIII inclusive servatur. Sic in Pontificali Romano s. XII... et s. XIII..., ipsa verba Statutorum "uno fundente benedictionem" expresse citantur». Consilium, «Schema 102 App», 1.

[35] «Attamen in Pontificali s. XII, codex Lugdunensis praescribit ut alii episcopi orationes dicant suppressa voce. Item in Pontificali s. XIII unus codex contra ceteros». Consilium, «Schema 102, App», 1.

rand directing the assisting bishops to recite the text of the ordination prayers along with the consecrator was omitted in the Roman Pontifical developed after the Council of Trent[36]. In the twentieth century Pius XII decreed that two assisting bishops should recite the ordination texts in a low voice along with the consecrator by his Apostolic Constitution «Episcopalis consecrationis» (1940)[37]; he defined the matter and form of the sacrament of order in the Apostolic Constitution «Sacramentum Ordinis» (1947) without changing the ritual prescriptions of his earlier constitution[38]. In 1950 the Sacred Congregation of Rites changed the Roman Pontifical, decreeing that the «co-consecrators» recite the prayer «Propitiare» and the entire ordination «Preface» in a low voice along with the consecrator, duplicating whatever he chants or recites except for the blessing of the insignia[39].

Schema 102 Appendix summarizes the «state of the question» after this historical investigation as follows:

> From these things it appears that the practice according to which all the consecrators recited the prayer is not ancient, but only from the 12th century on crept here and there into the Roman Rite; this practice was never strong and stable. Moreover the more ancient practice, which was already proposed by Hippolytus and the Statuta ecclesiae antiqua, was preserved by the Roman liturgy even after Durand; in the tradition of the Eastern churches it has always been maintained...

[36] «Saeculo XIII exeunte, Durandus... praescribit ut episcopi assistentes praefationem et orationes una cum consecratore dicant, exceptis benedictionibus ornamentorum. Attamen in Pontificali Romano haec rubrica omissa est, quod sine intentione fieri non potuit, cum Pontificale Romanum a Durando pendeat». Consilium, «Schema 102 App», 1.

[37] «Anno 1940 Pius XII publici iuris fecit Constitutionem apostolicam "Episcopalis consecrationis"... Summus Pontifex animadvertit in diversis regionibus diversam esse consuetudinem, dum hic consecratores secundarii nihil aliud dicunt ac formulam "Accipe Spiritum sanctum" (quae a Durando est introducta), illic autem omnes orationes dicunt. Ut ergo idem usus ubique servetur, praecipit ut duo episcopi assistentem [sic; a handwritten notation corrects to "assistentes"] praefationem et orationes submissa voce proferant, exceptis ornamentorum benedicionibus. Notat etiam Summus Pontifex praesentiam plurium consecratorum non requiri propter validitatem consecrationis, sed vi antiquae consuetudinis». Consilium, «Schema 102 App», 1.

[38] «Anno 1947, idem Pius XII promulgavit Constitutionem apostolicam "Sacramentum Ordinis"..., qua definivit materiam sacramenti ordinis esse solam manuum impositionem, formam autem praefationem quae illam comitatur. De consecratione episcopali nihil addidit, simpliciter remittens ad Constitutionem "Episcopalis consecrationis"». Consilium, «Schema 102 App», 1-2.

[39] «Denique anno 1950 Sacra Rituum Congregatio variationes edidit in Pontificale Romanum introducendas... De consecratione episcopali praecipit ut conconsecratores orationem Propitiare et praefationem integram cum consecratore recitent et submissa voce legant quae consecrator canit vel legit, exceptis ornamentorum benedictionibus. Insuper verba essentialia praefationis sine cantu proferri debent». Consilium, «Schema 102 App», 2.

> It should be noted that the obligation imposed on the consecrators of pronouncing the prayers does not derive from the Apostolic Constitution «Sacramentum Ordinis» but from an earlier document, that is to say from the Constitution «Episcopalis consecrationis» by which the Supreme Pontiff approved the practice proposed by Durandus. But in the Constitution «Sacramentum Ordinis» Pius XII posited a dogmatic principle which ought to lead to a different conclusion[40].

The schema then addresses the «dogmatic principle» involved in calling for a change in the practice of episcopal co-consecration. The document asserts that when Pius XII in «Sacramentum Ordinis» defined the matter and form of the sacrament of order he appealed to liturgical history rather than to theological speculation to support the definition[41]. Similarly the long-standing practice of the church in episcopal consecration should be given precedence over theological opinion:

> It does not seem temerious to apply this principle posited by Pius XII to episcopal consecration. For the tradition of all the churches — not excepting the Roman church until the twelfth century and beyond — always had been that one bishop offered the blessing, while the others imposed hands. If the rule for ordinations is that what has always and everywhere been handed down is to be followed, one does not see why the practice is to be bound to a particular use that arose in the Middle Ages....
> If therefore through twelve centuries and beyond the universal church in [40] «Ex his apparet usum secundum quem omnes consecratores preces recitant non esse antiquum, sed tantum a saeculo XII passim in ritum Romanum irrepsisse nec umquam firmum et stabilem fuisse. Usus autem antiquior, qui iam ab Hippolyto et Statutis ecclesiae antiquis proponitur, etiam post Durandum ipsa liturgia Romana perseveravit et in traditione ecclesiarum orientalium semper servatus est...

Notandum est obligationem consecratoribus impositam orationes pronuntiandi non e Constitutione apostolica "Sacramentum Ordinis" derivare, sed e documento anteriori, nempe e Constitutione "Episcopalis consecrationis" qua Summus Pontifex usum a Durando propositum probaverat. Iamvero in ipsa Constitutione "Sacramentum Ordinis", Pius XII principium dogmaticum posuit quod ad aliam conclusionem ducere deberet». Consilium, «Schema 102 App», 1, 2.

[41] «In Constitutione apostolica "Sacramentum Ordinis" Pius XII speculationi theologorum Latinorum veram traditionem opposuit. Opinio enim a saeculo XIII invaluerat secundum quam materia sacramenti ordinis erat traditio instrumentorum, opinio quae etiam in Pontificale Romanum irrepserat, in quo affirmabatur characterem praesertim in illa traditione instrumentorum imprimi.

Non speculatione theologica usus est Summus Pontifex ad veritatem probandam, sed via inquisitionis historicae. Probatur enim in omnibus Ecclesiae universalis ritibus diversorum temporum et regionum effectus ordinatione productos sufficienter significatos inveniri manuum impositione et verbis eam determinantibus. Iudicavit ergo Summus Pontifex unanimitatem omnium ecclesiarum esse factum dogmaticum contra quod nulla speculatio theologica praevalere potest». Consilium, «Schema 102 Appendix», 2.

> all its rites believed that episcopal consecration was effected by the imposition of hands of all bishops, one of whom offered the blessing in the name of all, it cannot through so many centuries have been in error. This is a dogmatic fact against which no theological speculation can prevail[42].

Schema 102 Appendix thus concludes with an appeal to the Pope to restore the «ancient and universal» practice:

> It appears that in such matters a judgment is only sought from Supreme Authority. After we have presented the fruit of our study, we cannot do anything except to petition the Supreme Pontiff that, having considered the topic carefully, the Roman Church might return to the ancient and universal tradition.
>
> Thus it will better appear that episcopal consecration is not so much a transmission of a certain power from person to person, but the act of the college of bishops incorporating a new member to itself.
>
> Thus the unity of the church will also appear more clearly, with the same tradition being followed in the West (as it had been at the beginning) and in the East[43].

3. Schema 150 (De Pontificali, 7)

Dated 5 April 1966, Schema 150 was discussed in May 1966 at a meeting of the Consilium's relatores in preparation for the seventh [42] «Non videtur temerarium hoc principium a Pio XII positum episcopali consecrationi applicare. Traditio enim omnium ecclesiarum — non excepta Romana usque ad saeculum XII et ultra — semper fuit ut unus episcopus benedicitionem funderet, aliis manus tantum imponentibus. Si regula est, in ordinationibus, quod semper et ubique traditum est servare, non videtur cur ad usum particularem medio aevo exortum standum esset...

Si ergo per duodecim saecula et ultra ecclesia universa in cunctis ritibus credidit consecrationem episcopalem effici per impositionem manuum omnium episcoporum, uno nomine omnium benedictionem fundente, non potuit per tot saecula errare. Est factum dogmaticum contra quod nulla speculatio theologica praevalere potest». Consilium, «Schema 102 Appendix», 2, 3.

[43] «Patet in tali materia iudicium Supremae Auctoritati tantum competere. Postquam fructum nostrae inquisitionis exposuimus, non possumus nisi Summum Pontificem supplicare ut, re melius perpensa, Ecclesia Romana ad antiquam et universalem traditionem redeat.

Sic melius apparebit consecrationem episcopalem non esse tantum transmissionem alicuius potestatis a persona ad personam, sed actum collegii episcoporum novum membrum sibi aggregantis.

Sic etiam melius apparebit unitas ecclesiae, eadem traditione quae fuit ab initio in occidente sicut in oriente servata». Consilium, «Schema 102 Appendix», 3.

plenary session[44]. This document outlines suggested rites for episcopal, presbyteral and diaconal ordinations, as well as a rite in which diaconal and presbyteral ordinations were celebrated in the same ceremony. The material on the ordination of a bishop-elect comprises four sections: 1) an introduction concerning the ordination in general, the concelebrated ordination Mass, the blessing of the episcopal insignia, and the material elements necessary for the liturgy; 2) the rubrics for the Liturgy of the Word; 3) the Ordination Rite proper; and 4) the Liturgy of the Eucharist. Extensive footnotes document the reasons for each proposal.

3.1. Proposed praenotanda

Concerning the ordination in general, Schema 150 directs that no one is to be ordained a bishop without the proper authorization[45]; that the principal ordaining bishop must associate two other bishops as «co-consecrators», although the practice of having all the bishops present «co-consecrate» is preferred[46]; that the bishop-elect be assisted by at least two presbyters from his presbyterate[47]; and that Sundays, feasts of the Apostles, or other festival days specially established by the Pope are the days on which episcopal consecrations should take place[48].

With reference to the concelebrated ordination Mass, Schema 150 directs that the principal ordaining bishop is to yield presidency of the eucharist to the newly ordained bishop if the ordination takes [45] «1 Nemo consecrari debet, nisi prius constet Consecratori principali de commissione consecrandi sive per litteras Apostolicas, si sit extra curiam, sive per commissionem vivae vocis oraculo, a Summo Pontifice Consecratori principali factam, si Consecrator principalis ipse sit Cardinalis». Consilium, «Schema 150», 1.

The justification for this directive was taken from the Roman Pontifical then in force.

[46] «2 Episcopus consecrator principalis debet saltem alios duos Episcopos consecrantes adhibere; sed valde optandum est, ut omnes Episcopi praesentes una cum Consecratore principali Electum consecrent». Consilium, «Schema 150», 1.

The demand for two «co-consecrating» bishops is taken from canon 954 of the 1917 Codex Iuris Canonici, while the preference for all the bishops to «co-consecrate» is justified by a reference to SC 76.

[47] «3 Electum saltem duo presbyteri eius presbyterii assistent». Consilium, «Schema 150», 1.

Responding favorably to quaesitum 16 of Schema 102 at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium, that body had directed that experts research whether the bishop-elect should be accompanied by bishops or presbyters.

[48] «4 Dies consecrationis debet esse Dominica vel Natalitium Apostolorum vel etiam festiva, si Summus Pontifex hoc specialiter indulserit». Consilium, «Schema 150», 1.

The justification for these days was taken from the Roman Pontifical then in force.

places in his proper church; otherwise the principal ordaining bishop retains presidency throughout the service[49]. All bishops present and at least two of the presbyters from the diocese proper to the newly ordained bishop are encouraged to concelebrate the Eucharist[50]; the ceremonial garb of the bishops and presbyters depends on whether or not they concelebrate the Eucharist[51].

Regarding the episcopal insignia, Schema 150 states that the episcopal ring, pastoral staff, and mitre can be blessed at some opportune time before the ordination liturgy; the schema provides rubrics but no texts for these blessings[52].

The last set of praenotanda lists the material elements needed for the ordination liturgy: ring, pastoral staff and mitre for the Elect, gifts for the Offertory (two torches, two loaves of bread, and two casks full of wine) from the Elect, booklets with the ordination texts for the co-consecrating bishops, and seats for the various clerics[53].

[49] «5 In liturgia verbi semper Consecrator principalis praesidet concelebrationi, quam praesidentiam etiam habet in liturgia eucharistica, si consecratio non in ecclesia propria Episcopi nuper consecrati fit; hoc in casu Episcopus nuper consecratus primum locum tenet inter alios concelebrantes.

Si autem Consecratio fit in ecclesia propria Episcopi nuper consecrati, ipse praesidet concelebrationi in liturgia eucharistica; hoc in casu Consecrator principalis primum locum tenet inter alios concelebrantes». Consilium, «Schema 150», 2.

This practice had been approved by a favorable vote on quaesitum 22 of Schema 102 at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium.

[51] «7 Consecrator principalis et Episcopi Consecrantes et concelebrantes (et presbyteri forte concelebrantes) sacras vestes induere debent sicut in Ritu servando pro Concelebratione Missae statutum est. Episcopi autem Consecrantes, qui forte non concelebrant, sumunt amictum, rochetum, crucem pectoralem, stolam, pluviale, mitram. Electus induit amictum, albam, cingulum, crucem pectoralem, stolam, casulam, manipulum». Consilium, «Schema 150», 3.

A footnote justifies the aggregation of concelebrating presbyters with concelebrating bishops by an appeal to SC 41.

[52] «8 Benedictiones anuli, baculi Pastoralis, mitrae tempore opportuno, ante ipsam actionem sacram de more peraguntur.

9... Pontifex sine mitra benedicit anulum dicens:

10... Pontifex sine mitra benedicit baculum Pastoralem dicens:

11... Pontifex sine mitra benedicit mitram dicens»: Consilium, «Schema 150», 3.

For each of the three blessings a footnote indicates: «Formula postea exarabitur».

[53] «12 Praeter ea quae pro Missae concelebratione necessaria sunt, in credentia haec parentur:

a) anulus, baculus Pastoralis, mitra pro Electo;

b) dona pro offertorio: duo intortitia, duo panes, duo barilia vino plena;

c) libelli orationis Consecrationis pro Episcopis consecrantibus.

13 Sedes pro Consecratore principali, Episcopis consecrantibus, Electo, presbyteris forte concelebrantibus parentur hoc modo:

3.2. Proposed ceremonies for the Liturgy of the Word

Concerning the Liturgy of the Word, Schema 150 sketches the rubrics for the opening procession[54], outlines the liturgical proclamation of the scriptures[55], and positions the rite of episcopal ordination proper after the proclamation of the gospel (or the recitation of the creed)[56].

3.3. Proposed texts and ceremonies for the Ordination Rite proper

Schema 150 provides the most detail in the proposed episcopal ordination rite. The ordination begins with the bishop-elect, assisted by two presbyters, coming before the principal ordaining bishop[57]. The «postulation» follows: one of the assisting presbyters formally requests the principal ordaining bishop to ordain the bishop-elect, the principal ordaining bishop ascertains that papal permission has been granted, and the apostolic mandate granting this permission is publicly read[58]. The principal ordaining bishop then addresses the bishop-

a) In liturgia verbi sedes pro Episcopis consecrantibus iuxta sedem Consecratoris principalis stent, sedes. pro Electo et presbyteris assistentibus (et forte concelebrantibus) stent in opportuniore loco presbyterii versae ad sedem Consecratoris principalis.

b) Si opus est in Consecratione Electi parentur sedes pro Consecratore principali et Episcopis consecrantibus inter altare et cancellos, ita ut tota actio liturgica bene conspici queat». Consilium, «Schema 150», 4.

[54] «14 Omnibus rite dispositis, ordinatur processio per ecclesiam ad altare modo consueto. Subdiaconum librum Evangeliorum deferentem sequuntur presbyteri concelebrantes, quorum duo digniores Electum a dexteris et a sinistris ducunt, deinde Episcopi consecrantes ac denique Episcopus Consecrator principalis medius inter duos Episcopos Consecrantes digniores». Consilium, «Schema 150», 4.

[55] «15 Peragitur liturgia verbi more in Ritu servando pro Concelebratione Missae descripto». Consilium, «Schema 150», 4.

[56] «16 Dicto evangelio vel symbolo, si dicendum est, expleto, incipit Consecratio episcopalis». Consilium, «Schema 150», 5.

Positioning the rite of episcopal ordination proper after the liturgy of the word had been approved by favorable vote on quaesitum 20 of Schema 102 at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium.

[57] «18 Electus a duobus presbyteris assistentibus adducitur ante sedem Consecratoris principalis, cui reverentiam faciunt capita inclinantes». Consilium, «Schema 150», 5.

A footnote provides the justification for the two assisting presbyters: «Erat antiquus usus romanus, ut delegati cleri et populi ecclesiae episcopum desiderantis a consecratore, in hoc casu a Pontifice Romano, consecrationem Electi postularent...». Consilium, «Schema 150», 5.

[58] «19 Dignior presbyterorum assistentium alloquitur Consecratorem principalem his verbis:

Reverendissime pater, postulat sancta mater Ecclesia Catholica, ut hunc praesentem Presbyterum ad onus Episcopatus sublevetis.

Consecrator principalis dicit:

elect and the liturgical assembly on the duties of a bishop; the «sample allocution» is not provided in Schema 150[59]. After the address the principal ordaining bishop publicly examines the bishop-elect; the texts of the examination are also not provided[60]. The chanting of the litany of the saints follows: the principal ordaining bishop calls the liturgical assembly to prayer with a text from the Romano-Germanic Pontifical[61], the bishop-elect prostrates and the rest of the assembly kneels as the cantors lead the litany (concluding with special texts praying for the bishop-elect)[62], and the principal ordaining bishop

Habetis mandatum Apostolicum?

Respondet dignior presbyterorum assistentium:

Habemus.

Consecrator principalis dicit:

Legatur.

20 Tum notarius Consecratoris principalis accipiens mandatum de manu presbyteri assistentis legit mandatum. Mandato a notario perlecto, Consecrator principalis dicit:

Deo gratias». Consilium, «Schema 150», 5-6.

The rubrics and texts of this postulation are taken from the Roman Pontifical then in force.

[59] «21 Deinde Consecrator principalis alloquitur Electum coram se sedentem necnon et clerum ac populum. Si velit, facere potest his verbis»: Consilium, «Schema 150», 6.

Positioning this allocution after the reading of the apostolic mandate was approved by a favorable vote on quaesitum 17 of Schema 102 at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium. A footnote adds that the text of the sample allocution «...adhuc exaranda». Consilium, «Schema 150», 6.

[60] «Post allocutionem surgit Electus et stat ante Consecratorem principalem sedentem cum mitra. Consecrator principalis examinat Electum his verbis:

Vis...

Electus respondet:

Volo». Consilium, «Schema 150», 6.

The favorable vote on quaesitum 18 of Schema 102 at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium mandated an investigation of how the bishop-elect's examination might be made more suited to contemporary conditions, but as the footnote declares in reference to the text of the examination: «Formula adhuc exaranda». Consilium, «Schema 150», 6.

[61] «23 Deinde omnes surgunt. Consecrator principalis dicit versus ad populum:

Oremus, dilectissimi nobis, ut huic Electo utilitati ecclesiae providens benignitas omnipotens Dei gratiae suae tribuat largitatem.

Diaconus:

Flectamus genua». Consilium, «Schema 150», 6.

A footnote offers an alternative text that appears in the Old Gelasian Sacramentary and the Missale Francorum: «Oremus, dilectissimi nobis, ut his viris ad utilitatem ecclesiae providendis, benignitas omnipotentis Dei gratiae suae tribuat largitatem». Consilium, «Schema 150», 6.

[62] «24 Et mox Consecrator principalis et Episcopi consecrantes ante sedes suas cum mitris procumbunt; Electus vero prosternit se a sinistris Consecratoris principalis; ministri etiam atque alii omnes genuflectunt.

Tum cantores incipiunt Litanias.

Post ultimam invocationem addatur:

completes the litany with an ancient Roman oration[63].

The rubrics and text of the ordination prayer form the heart of the rite. As the liturgical assembly stands, the bishop-elect kneels before the principal consecrating bishop, who positions an evangelary over the bishop-elect's neck and shoulders[64]; two deacons hold the evangelary in this position throughout the ordination prayer[65]. The principal and co-consecrating bishops lay hands on the bishop-elect's

Ut hunc Electum benedicere digneris. R: Te rogamus...

Ut hunc Electum benedicere, et sanctificare digneris...

Ut hunc Electum benedicere, et sanctificare, et consecrate digneris». Consilium, «Schema 150», 7.

The favorable vote on quaesitum 19 of Schema 102 at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium requested that the form of the litany be made more appropriate and briefer. A footnote provides the justification for the concluding cantorial texts of the litany: «Nobis visum est reverti ad antiquiorem traditionem romanam..., secundum quam cantores cantant et invocationes speciales... Hoc loco benedictio Consecratoris principalis inutilis ac praebens ansam erroris videtur, quia benedictionem seu consecrationem veram, in ritu nempe sacramentali conferendam, aliquo modo duplicat. Modus usque nunc in Pontificali Guilelmi Durandi ... primo occurit..., in statu minus evoluto in Pontificali Romano XII saec., secundae recensionis...». Consilium, «Schema 150», 7.

[63] «25 Deinde surgit solus Consecrator principalis et deposita mitra cantat (vel clara voce dicit) orationem:

Propitiare, Domine, supplicationibus nostris, et inclinato super hunc famulum tuum cornu gratiae sacerdotalis, benedictionis tuae in eum effunde virtutem. Per...

26 Postea Diaconus:

Levate». Consilium, «Schema 150», 7.

A footnote asserts that the text of this prayer is found «in Sacramentario Veronensi ... in Sacramentario Gregoriano ... et in tota traditione». Consilium, «Schema 150», 7.

[64] «27 Omnes surgunt; Consecrator principalis et Episcopi consecrantes stant cum mitra ante faldistoria sua, versi ad Electum et populum. Electus surgit et coram Consecratore principali genuflectit.

28 Tum Consecrator principalis imponit librum Evangeliorum apertum super cervicem et scapulas Electi». Consilium, «Schema 150», 8.

[65] «[28] Duo diaconi a dexteris et sinistris Electi stantes teneant librum Evangeliorum usque dum oratio Consecrationis finitur...

31 Finita oratione Consecrationis diaconi resumunt librum Evangeliorum de cervice Consecrati et unus diaconorum tenet codicem usque dum traditur Consecrato». Consilium, «Schema 150», 8, 12.

A footnote defends the practice of having two deacons hold the evangelary rather than a single chaplain or two bishops: «Nobis ineptum videtur, unum ex Capellanis librum tenere; si autem duo librum tenere debeant, restituatur modus ab antiquissimis temporibus traditus: Liber Evangeliorum a duobus diaconis teneatur... Modus alter — duo episcopi tenentes librum evangeliorum — a sic dictis "Statutis Ecclesiae antiquis" initium sumit... Hic modus et in Pontificali romano-germanico... et in Pontificali Romano XII saec... occurrit». Consilium, «Schema 150», 8.

The favorable vote on quaesitum 12 of Schema 102 at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium permits holding the evangelary over the bishop-elect's neck and shoulders during the imposition of hands and ordination prayer alone.

head in silence[66]. With extended hands the principal consecrating bishop chants (or recites aloud) the following ordination prayer[67]; all the co-consecrating bishops join in chanting or reciting the underlined text while extending their hands toward the bishop-elect[68]:

> God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Father of mercies and God of all consolation [2 Corinthians 1:3], you who live in the heights and regard the lowly [Psalm 113:5-6], you who know all things before they come to birth [Daniel 13:43], you who have given rules in your church through the word of your grace, you who have predestined from the beginning a race of the righteous from Abraham, you who have established princes and priests and who have not left your sanctuary without a ministry, you who were pleased from the beginning of the world in these ones by whom you have chosen to be glorified:

[66] «29 Deinde Consecrator principalis imponit ambas manus super caput Electi nihil dicens. Similiter faciunt post eum et Episcopi consecrantes».

30 Episcopis consecrantibus ad loca sua reversis omnes deponunt mitras...». Consilium, «Schema 150», 9.

The favorable votes on quaesita 1 and 2 of Schema 102 at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium justify laying on hands in silence before the solemn ordination prayer; SC 76 and Inter Oecumenici 69 provide permission for all the bishops present to impose hands on the bishop-elect.

[67] «[30] ...Consecrator principalis extensis manibus ante pectus cantat (vel clara voce dicit)»: Consilium, «Schema 150», 9.

[68] «Sequentia verba orationis Consecrationis cantantur (vel clara voce dicuntur) ab omnibus Episcopis consecrantibus, qui manus versus Electum extendunt:

Prosequitur Consecrator principalis extensis manibus ante pectus»: Consilium, «Schema 150», 11-12.

A footnote remands the decision on whether or not to identify the «essential words» of the sacramental form to higher authority: «Patet iudicium spectare ad superiorem auctoritatem, utrum verba essentialia debeant determinari et quaenam sint. Secundum propositionem in Sess. Cons. VI factam nobis videntur haec verba ideam essentialem Consecrationis episcopalis bene exprimere: "Nunc... nominis tui"». Consilium, «Schema 150», 11.

The favorable votes on quaesita 4 and 6 of Schema 102 at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium provide the rationale for directing that the «essential words» of the sacramental form could be chanted (or recited aloud) by all the co-consecrating bishops with the principal ordaining bishop.

Although the rubric directing that the co-consecrating bishops should extend their hands toward the bishop-elect as they chant or recite the «essential words» was not proposed in Schema 102, a footnote argues that it should be accepted since a similar ceremony had been approved for presbyteral ordination: «In schemate 102 de hac manuum extensione versus Electum facta non est mentio; sed in schemate 124 ... dictum est...: "Maxime decet, rubricam firmiter praescribere, ut omnes presbyteri, qui manus imposuerunt, durante praefatione consecrationis circa Episcopum consecrantem stent, immo etiam manuum impositionem per manus dexterae extensionem continuare debeant...". Si autem in Consecratione Presbyteri Consecrator et presbyteri adstantes manus versus Consecrandos extendunt, potius ergo in Con[secra]tione Episcopi Consecrator principalis et Episcopi consecrantes modo proposito manus extendant». Consilium, «Schema 150», 11.

Now pour out that power which is from you, the principal Spirit [Psalm 51:141], which you have given to your beloved Son Jesus Christ, which he gave to the holy apostles, who established the church through individual places as your sanctuary, unto the undying glory and praise of your name.

Grant, Father who understands hearts, upon this your servant, whom you have chosen for the episcopacy, that he might shepherd your holy flock, and might manifest for you the high priesthood without reproach, serving you night and day, that he might offer sacrifice unceasingly before your face and offer the gifts of your holy church; grant that by the power of the Spirit of the high priesthood he might have the power of forgiving sins according to your mandate [John 20:23]; that he might distribute offices according to your precept and loose every bond according to the power which you gave to the apostles [Matthew 18:18]; may he be pleasing to you in gentleness and a pure heart, offering to you the odor of sweetness, through your Son Jesus Christ, through whom to you be glory and power and honor, with the Holy Spirit in the holy Church both now and unto the ages of ages. R. Amen[69].

[69] «[30] Deus et pater domini nostri Iesu Christi, pater misericordiarum et Deus totius consolationis (2 Cor 1,3), qui in excelsis habitas et humilia respicis (Ps 112, 5-6), qui cognoscis omnia antequam nascantur (Dan 13,43), tu qui dedisti in ecclesia tua regulas per verbum gratiae tuae, qui praedestinasti ex principio genus iustorum ab Abraham, qui constitutisti principes ac sacerdotes, et sanctuarium tuum sine ministerio non dereliquisti, cui ab initio mundi placuit, in his, quos elegisti glorificari: nunc effunde eam virtutem, quae a te est, Spiritum principalem (Ps 50, 14), quem dedisti dilecto filio tuo Iesu Christo, quem donavit sanctis apostolis, qui constituerunt ecclesiam per singula loca ut sanctuarium tuum, in gloriam et laudem indeficientem nominis tui.

Da, cordium cognitor pater, super hunc servum tuum, quem elegisti ad episcopatum, ut pascat gregem sanctum tuum, et summum sacerdotium tibi exhibeat sine reprehensione, serviens tibi nocte et die, ut incessanter vultum tuum propitium reddat et offerat dona sanctae ecclesiae tuae; da ut virtute Spiritus summi sacerdotii habeat potestatem dimittendi peccata secundum mandatum tuum (Jo 20, 23); ut distribuat munera secundum praeceptum tuum et solvat omne vinculum secundum potestatem quam dedisti apostolis (Mt. 18, 18); placeat tibi in mansuetudine et mundo corde, offerens tibi odorem suavitatis, per filium tuum Iesum Christum, per quem tibi gloria et potentia et honor, cum Spiritu sancto in sancta Ecclesia et nunc et in saecula saeculorum.

R. Amen». Consilium, «Schema 150», 10-11.

The favorable vote on quaesitum 5 of Schema 102 at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium directed that research be done on the possibility of providing a different episcopal ordination prayer from the one in the Roman Pontifical then in force. A footnote indicates the sources of the proposed ordination prayer: «Textus propositus versionem latinam Traditionis Apostolicae S. Hippolyti praebet, quae tamen corrigitur, ubi opus est, secundum reconstructionem lingua gallica a B. Botte facta ex versionibus orientalibus et praesertim ex "Epitome Constitutionis Apostolicae" graeca, ubi oratio consecrationis directe ex "Traditione Apostolica" deprompta est». Consilium, «Schema 150», 9.

A footnote explains why no dialogue prefaces the proposed ordination prayer: «Dialogus initialis consuetus orationis Consecrationis non retinetur, quia ex se oratio Consecrationis non est prex eucharistica; praeterea dialogus initialis orationis Consecrationis duplicat dialogum initialem praefationis Missae...». Consilium, «Schema 150», 10.

A series of explanatory rites follow the solemn imposition of hands and ordination prayer. The principal ordaining bishop anoints the newly-ordained bishop's head with chrism in the sign of the cross; the schema does not provide the texts to be spoken or sung during this ceremony[70]. The principal ordaining bishop presents the evangelary to the newly-ordained bishop with the text: «Receive the Gospel and preach to the people committed to you; for God is powerful to increase his grace for you»[71]. The principal ordaining bishop presents the newly-ordained bishop with his episcopal insignia: the ring, the pastoral staff, and the mitre; only the text for the giving of the ring is provided by the schema[72]. The newly-ordained bishop is enthroned [70] «32 Consecrator principalis pollicem suum intingit in sanctum Chrisma et inungit in forma crucis summitatem capitis Consecrati coram se genuflexi dicens»: Consilium, «Schema 150», 12.

The favorable votes on quaesita 7 and 8 of Schema 102 at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium support placing the ceremony of anointing the newly-ordained bishop's head after the ordination prayer as well as omitting the anointing of the newly-ordained bishop's hands.

A footnote indicates that the ceremony of tieing the bishop's head after the anointing has been omitted as inappropriate and that other texts are being considered to replace the antiphon and psalm sung during the ceremony: «Ligatio capitis cum mappula ritus inutilis est et ommittatur... D. Martimort dixit: "Antiphona 'Unguentum in capite' cum suo psalmo hodie difficultatem facit"; proposuit, ut cantetur Is 62, 1-2 (Lc 4, 18-19)». Consilium, «Schema 150», 12.

Another footnote declares that the text said by the principal ordaining bishop «adhuc exarabitur». Consilium, «Schema 150», 12.

[71] «33 Tunc Consecrator principalis accipit librum Evangeliorum e manu diaconi illumque tradit Consecrato his verbis:

Accipe Evangelium et praedica populo tibi commisso; potens est enim Deus, ut augeat tibi gratiam suam.

Postea diaconus resumit librum Evangeliorum et reponit in legile». Consilium, «Schema 150», 12.

The favorable votes on quaesita 13 and 14 of Schema 102 at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium support placing this ceremony after the anointing of the newly ordained bishop's head and before the giving of the episcopal insignia.

The text modifies that given in the Roman Pontifical then in use (omissions are underlined): «Accipe Evangelium, et vade, praedica populo tibi commisso; potens est enim Deus, ut augeat tibi gratiam suam; qui vivit et regnat in saecula saeculorum. R. Amen». Consilium, «Schema 150», 12.

[72] 34 Tum Consecrator principalis anulum in digitum anularem dexterae manus Consecrati immittit dicens:

Accipe anulum ut fidei signaculum: et sponsam Dei sanctam Ecclesiam, intemerata fide ornatus, illibate custodi.

35 Deinde Consecrator principalis tradit Consecrato baculum Pastoralem in manum dexteram dicens:

36 Deinde Consecrator principalis imponit Consecrato mitram nihil dicens». Consilium, «Schema 150», 12-13.

The favorable votes on quaesita 9, 10 and 11 of Schema 102 at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium authorize blessing the episcopal insignia before the ordination on the cathedra of his own diocese or takes his place among the other bishops if he is not ordained as Ordinary of the diocese in which the ordination is held[73]. The rite of episcopal ordination proper concludes with a kiss of peace exchanged among the bishops and offered by the newly-ordained bishop to the concelebrating presbyters[74].

3.4. Proposed texts and ceremonies for the Liturgy of the Eucharist

Schema 150 directs that the eucharistic liturgy follow the norms established for concelebrated Masses[75]. Two torches, two loaves of bread, and two casks of wine are presented along with the other gifts at the offertory[76]. All the clerical concelebrants except for the newly ordained bishop himself pray the following proper insertion into the Roman Canon («Hanc igitur»):

ceremony, as well as omitting or developing new texts to accompany their presentation to the newly ordained bishop.

The text associated with the giving of the ring is adapted from that in the Roman Pontifical then in force (omissions and modifications underlined): «Accipe anulum... fidei scilicet signaculum: quatenus sponsam Dei, sanctam videlicet Ecclesiam intemerata fide ornatus, illibitate custodias. R. Amen». Consilium, «Schema 150», 13.

A footnote indicates that the text for the giving of the pastoral staff «adhuc exarabitur». Consilium, «Schema 150», 13.

The giving of the mitre without accompanying text is defended on the grounds that the text in the Roman Pontifical then in force no longer corresponded to present-day conditions: «Impositio mitrae secundum opinionem nostram fiat sub silentio, quia formula tradita — unica in historia Consecrationis Episcopi — "rerum conditionem obsoletam sapit"...». Consilium, «Schema 150», 13.

[73] «37 Tum surgunt Consecrator principalis et Episcopi consecrantes et Consecratus. Consecrator principalis et dignior Episcoporum consecrantium intronizant Consecratum (si consecratio fit in Ecclesia propria Consecrati) hoc modo: Consecrator principalis et dignior Episcoporum consecrantium ducunt Consecratum ad cathedram episcopalem, Consecratore principali a dextris, digniore Episcoporum consecrantium a sinistris Consecrati ingredientibus, praecedentibus omnibus aliis Episcopis consecrantibus.

Si autem Consecratio non fit in Ecclesia propria Consecrati, Consecrator principalis et dignior Episcoporum consecrantium deducunt Consecratum ad sedes Episcoporum concelebrantium et Consecratus sedet hac die ad dexteram Consecratoris principalis». Consilium, «Schema 150», 13-14.

The favorable vote on quaesitum 15 of Schema 102 at the sixth plenary session of the Consilium justifies this practice.

[74] «38 Demum Consecratus accipit a consecratore principali et ab omnibus Episcopis consecrantibus osculum pacis et praebet pacem etiam presbyteris forte concelebrantibus». Consilium, «Schema 150», 14.

[75] «39 Fiunt omnia secundum Ritum servandum in Concelebratione Missae praeter haec quae sequuntur»: Consilium, «Schema 150», 14.

[76] «40 Inter oblata per ministros deferenda sint duo intortia, duo panes, duo barilia vino plena». Consilium, «Schema 150», 14.

A footnote asserts that the offering of these gifts corresponded to the custom found in the Roman Pontifical then in use.

> Therefore we ask, Lord, that having been placated you would accept this offering of our service and that of all your family which we offer to you also for this your servant whom you have deigned to promote to the order of the episcopacy and that graciously you would watch over your gifts in him; so that what has been accomplished by divine office may be followed by divine effects: that you would order our days in your peace, and that you would command that we should be saved from eternal damnation and be numbered in the flock of your chosen ones. Through Christ our Lord. R. Amen[77].

After communion the «Te Deum laudamus» is sung before the principal celebrant prays the Postcommunion text[78]. Alternative «Gallican» blessing texts are provided as alternatives to the standard pontifical benediction[79]. The newly ordained bishop, assisted by the

"Hanc igitur" oblationem servitutis nostrae, sed et cunctae familiae tuae, quam tibi offerimus, etiam pro hoc famulo tuo, quem ad Episcopatus ordinem promovere dignatus es, quaesumus, Domine, ut placatus accipias, et propitius in eo tua dona custodias; ut quod divino munere consecutus est divinis exsequatur effectibus: diesque nostros in tua pace disponas: atque ab aeterna damnatione nos eripi, et in electorum iubeas grege numerari. Per Christum Dominum nostrum. R. Amen». Consilium, «Schema 150», 14.

Footnotes assert: «'Hanc igitur' natura sua exprimit intentionem specialem sacrificii.... Textus "Hanc igitur" Pontificalis Romani iam in Sacramentario Gregoriano... occurrit». Consilium, «Schema 150», 14.

[78] «42 Communione fidelium expleta cantatur Hymnus "Te Deum laudamus". Hymno finito Episcopus celebrans principalis cantat "Dominus vobiscum" et Postcommunionem et perficit reliqua in conclusione Missae». Consilium, «Schema 150», 15.

Positioning the singing of the «Te Deum» before the Postcommunion prayer gives it a double focus: «Cantus Hymni "Te Deum laudamus" post communion fidelium demonstrat hymnum esse elementum gratiarum actionis pro gratia tam in Consecratione episcopali quam in Eucharistia accepta». Consilium, «Schema 150», 15.

[79] «43 Loco benedictionis Pontificalis consuetae dici potest Benedictio sollemnis "Gallicana"». Consilium, «Schema 150», 15.

Two sample blessings taken from the Romano-Germanic Pontifical are provided in a footnote, one to be used by the newly ordained bishop if he presides, the other by the principal ordaining bishop if he presides:

«I: Benedicat tibi dominus custodiensque te, sicut voluit super populum suum constituere pontificem, ita in praesenti saeculo felicem et aeterne felicitatis faciat esse consortem. R.: Amen.

Clerum ac populum, quem sua voluit opitulatione in tua sanctione congregari, sua dispensatione et tua administratione per diuturna tempora faciat feliciter gubernari. R.: Amen.

Quatenus divinis monitis parentes, adversitatibus carentes, bonis omnibus exuberantes, tuo ministerio fide obsequentes et in praesenti saeculo pacis tranquillitate fruantur et tecum aeternorum civium consortio potiri mereantur. R.: Amen. Quod ipse praestare dignetur.

II: Deus qui populis tuis indulgendo consulis et amore dominaris, da spiritum sapientiae quibus tradidisti regimen disciplinae, et de profectu sanctarum ovium fiant gaudia aeterna pastorum. R.: Amen.

4. Schema 180 «De Ordinatione Diaconi, Presbyteri, Episcopi» (De Pontificali - 12) and Schema 180, Addenda «De Ordinatione Diaconi, Presbyteri, Episcopi Addenda vel Corrigenda» (De Pontificali, 12 - Addenda).

Dated 29 August 1966, Schema 180 was discussed (along with the corrections and additions contained in Schema 180, Addenda) at the seventh plenary session of the Consilium on 6 October 1966[81]. These documents present both proposed praenotanda, texts and ceremonies for the ordination of a bishop, as well as an appendix documenting the relationship between the proposed episcopal ordination prayer and those of some Eastern churches.

4.1. Proposed praenotanda

Schema 180 modifies Schema 150's directives for appropriate dates on which a bishop's ordination should take place: the presence of as many of the faithful as possible at the ordination is now given high priority in choosing the date[82]; it changes the edict of having all the bishops present «co-consecrate» from a preference to a norm[83];

Et qui dierum nostrorum numerum temporumque mensuras maiestatis tuae potestate dispensas, propitius ad humilitatis nostrae respice servitutem et pacis tuae abundantiam temporibus nostris praetende perfectam. R.: Amen.

Collatis quoque in me per gratiam tuam propitiare muneribus et quem fecisti gradu episcopali sublimem, fac operum perfectione tibi placentem atque in eum affectum dirige cor plebis, et praesulis, ut nec pastori oboedientia gregis nec gregi desit umquam cura pastoris. R.: Amen. Quod ipse praestare dignetur». Consilium, «Schema 150», 15.

[80] «44 Data benedictione omnes processionaliter per ecclesiam ingrediuntur, Consecrato deducto a Consecratore principali a dextris et digniore Episcoporum consecrantium a sinistris. Consecratus circumeundo omnibus benedicit.

Et sic omnes revertuntur in secretarium». Consilium, «Schema 150», 15.

The ritual form of the exit procession is taken from the Roman Pontifical then in use.

[81] Bugnini, Reform, 711.

[82] «71 Fiat ordinatio episcopi fidelium quam maxima praesentia; quapropter dies ordinationis dominica esse debet vel festum Apostolorum vel alius dies festivus, si rationes pastorales id suadent». Consilium, «Schema 180», 32.

A handwritten notation adds «vel alii» after «festivus», probably indicating the discussion at the seventh plenary session of the Consilium.

[83] Rather than «sed valde optandum est, ut omnes Episcopi praesentes una cum Consecratore principali Electum consecrent» as in Schema 150, art. 2 (cf. footnote 46 it states that the bishop-elect is to be assisted by two presbyters only, but does not demand that they be from the bishop-elect's presbytery[84]; and it confirms and clarifies the respective presidential roles of principal ordaining bishop and bishop-elect[85]. The document repeats the directives of Schema 150 concerning the episcopal and presbyteral concelebrants and their vesture[86].

Confirming Schema 150's edict that the blessing of the bishop's ring, pastoral staff and mitre may be done at any opportune time before the ordination, Schema 180 provides texts and ceremonies for these blessings:

> The blessing of the ring, pastoral staff and mitre is done at an opportune time before the ordination of the bishop in this way:
>
> V: «Our help is in the name of the Lord».
> R: «Who made heaven and earth».
> V: «The Lord be with you».
> R: «And with your spirit».
> V: «Let us pray».
>
> Almighty, eternal God, bless these signs (this sign) of the pastoral task and pontifical honor, so that he who uses them (it) may receive the reward of the dispensation credited to him with Christ, the high priest and good shepherd, in life eternal. Through the same Jesus Christ our Lord who...»

[85] «74 Si ordinatio fit in ecclesia propria ordinandi, ipse episcopus nuper ordinatus praesidet concelebrationi in liturgia eucharistica, consecrator autem principalis primum locum tenet inter alios concelebrantes. Si autem ordinatio non fit in ecclesia ordinandi, consecrator principalis praesidet concelebrationi; hoc in casu episcopus nuper ordinatus primum locum tenet inter alios concelebrantes». Consilium, «Schema 180», 32. Cf. footnote 49 above.

76 Consecrator principalis et Episcopi Consecrantes et concelebrantes et presbyteri concelebrantes sacras vestes induere debent sicut in "Ritu servando pro Concelebratione Missae" statutum est. Episcopi autem Consecrantes, qui forte non celebrant, sumunt rochetum, amictum, crucem pectoralem, stolam, pluviale, mitram. Electus induit omnia paramenta sacerdotalia necnon et crucem pectoralem». Consilium, «Schema 180», 32-33. Cf. footnotes 50 and 51 above.

A handwritten notation on article 75 crosses out «Insuper» and makes the initial letter of «optandum» upper case, probably indicating a stylistic correction.

And they are sprinkled with blessed water[87].

Schema 180 omits the special episcopal gifts for the Offertory (two torches, two loaves of bread, and two casks full of wine) from its list of material elements needed for the celebration of episcopal ordination[88], and strengthens the concern that the faithful be able to view the ceremonies in its directives for providing seats for the various clerics[89].

4.2. Proposed texts and ceremonies for the Liturgy of the Word

Schema 180 modifies Schema 150's sketch of the opening procession: the presbyters walking with the bishop-elect at his right and left are no longer described as «digniores», and the principal ordaining

R: "Amen".
Et aspergantur aqua benedicta». Consilium, «Schema 180», 49.
Schema 180, Addenda replaces «peraguntur» in the first sentence above with «peragitur». Consilium, «Schema 180, Addenda», 5.

[88] «78 Praeter ea quae pro Missae concelebratione necessaria sunt, in credentia haec parentur:

[89] «79 Sedes pro Consecratore principali, Episcopis consecrantibus, Electo, presbyteris concelebrantibus parentur hoc modo:
a) In liturgia verbi consecrator principalis sedeat in cathedra, episcopi consecrantes sedeant iuxta cathedram; electus inter presbyteros eum assistentes et concelebrantes sedeat in presbyterio, ut ab omnibus videri potest.
b) Ordinatio electi, fiat de more ad cathedram; si autem propter participationem fidelium opus est, parentur sedes pro consecratore principali et episcopis consecrantibus inter altare et cancellos; sedes pro electo et presbyteris eum assistentibus inter altare et cancellos sic parentur, ut tota actio liturgica a fidelibus bene conspici queat». Consilium, «Schema 180», 33. Cf. footnote 53 above.
Schema 180, Addenda indicates that «possit» should replace «potest» in the phrase «ut ab omnibus videri potest» in sentence a) above. Consilium, «Schema 180, Addenda», 3.

bishop walks between two deacons rather than between two of the consecrating bishops[90]. It confirms Schema 150's outline of the proclamation of the scriptures, but adds two choices for the epistle text and three choices for the gospel text to be proclaimed[91]. It likewise confirms Schema 150's placement of the episcopal ordination rite proper after the Liturgy of the Word, but further notes that the litany of the saints takes the place of the prayer of the faithful[92].

4.3. Proposed texts and ceremonies for the Ordination Rite proper

Schema 180 makes a series of modifications in Schema 150's presentation of the proposed episcopal ordination rite. While the ordination proper begins with the bishop-elect, assisted by two presbyters, coming before the principal ordaining bishop, the form of reverence to be given by the bishop-elect is no longer specified[93]. The presbyter postulating the bishop-elect is no longer described as «dignior» and a distinction is made in the form of postulation: the local church postulates a residential bishop, while the «church catholic» postulates a non-residential bishop[94]. The procedure outlined in Schema 150 for determining papal permission for the ordination and the reading of the apostolic mandate is retained in Schema 180, but the entire assembly now acclaims the reading of the mandate[95].

[90] «80. Omnibus rite dispositis, ordinatur processio per ecclesiam ad altare modo consueto. Subdiaconum librum Evangeliorum deferentem sequuntur presbyteri concelebrantes, quorum duo Electum a destris et a sinistris ducunt, deinde Episcopi consecrantes ac denique Episcopus Consecrator principalis medius inter duos diaconos». Consilium, «Schema 180», 34. Cf. footnote 54 above.

[91] «81. Peragitur liturgia verbi more in "Ritu servando pro Concelebratione Missae descripto["].
82 Epistola legi potest 1 Petr 5, 1-4 vel Eph 4, 1.7.11-16, Evangelium Io 10,9-16 vel Io 17.1a. 6-11 vel Io 17,1a. 17-23». Consilium, «Schema 180», 34. Cf. footnote 55 above.

[92] «83. Dicto evangelio vel symbolo, si dicendum est, expleto, incipit ordinatio episcopi. Oratio fidelium substituitur per Litanias». Consilium, «Schema 180», 34. Cf. footnote 56 above.

[93] «84. Consecrator principalis et episcopi consecrantes accedunt ad sedes pro ordinatione electi paratas, si opus est...
85. Electus a duobus presbyteris adducitur ante sedem Consecratoris principalis, cui reverentiam faciunt». Consilium, «Schema 180», 35. Cf. footnote 57 above.

[94] «86. Unus e presbyteris alloquitur Consecratorem principalem his verbis:
"Reverendissime Pater, postulat ecclesia N., ut presbyterum N.N. ad onus episcopatus sublevetis".
Si agitur de episcopo ordinando non residentiali:
"Reverendissime Pater, postulat sancta mater Ecclesia Catholica, ut presbyterum N.N. ad onus episcopatus sublevetis"». Consilium, «Schema 180», 35.

[95] «[86.] Consecrator principalis:
"Habetis mandatum Apostolicum[?]".
R. "Habemus".

While noting that the address would normally be given «vivo verbo», Schema 180 provides a «sample allocution» for the principal consecrating bishop to address to the bishop-elect and the liturgical assembly on the duties of a bishop; the model is primarily the work of Lengeling and Botte[96]:

> Then the principal ordaining bishop briefly addresses the bishop-elect sitting before him as well as the clergy and the people. If circumstances suggest it, it could be done in these words[97]:
>
> Most dear sons, consider attentively to what rank in the church our brother is to be promoted. Our Lord Jesus Christ, sent by the Father so that he might redeem the human race, himself sent into the world twelve apostles who, filled with the power of the Holy Spirit [Acts 1:8], would preach the gospel and govern [or would preach the gospel and, having gathered all nations into one flock, would sanctify and govern] [cf. Matthew 28:16-20 and parallels; Lumen Gentium 19]. Moreover so that this office would remain until the end of the age [cf. Matthew 28:20; Lumen Gentium 20], the apostles chose assistants for themselves, to whom they gave the gift of the Holy Spirit received from Christ through the laying on of hands [cf. 1 Timothy 4:14; 2 Timothy 1:6-7]. So from generation to generation this primary tradition was preserved through the continued succession of bishops [cf. Lumen Gentium 21/2] and the Savior's work has persevered and grown until today[98].

Consecrator principalis:
"Legatur".

87. Tunc notarius legit mandatum omnibus sedentibus. Mandato perlecto omnes dicunt "Deo gratias" vel populus electionem approbat secundum morem regionis». Consilium, «Schema 180», 35. Cf. footnote 58 above.

[96] «In our first draft there was only a simple rubric indicating the moment when it was to be made, for our understanding was that the person speaking would improvise it. Therefore, we had not drafted any text. The bishops of the Commission [i.e., the Consilium] asked us — with an insistence that surprised us — to draft a formula which could at least serve as a model. So I asked Professor Lengeling to compose an address inspired by the teachings of Vatican II. He did this very carefully. It was an excellent synthesis of the Council's teaching: each sentence was backed up by precise references. However, since the conciliar style is not particularly elegant, I tried to give a more harmonious literary shape to the text». Botte, From Silence, 136.

[97] «88. Deinde Consecrator principalis breviter alloquitur Electum coram se sedentem necnon et clerum ac populum. Si circumstantiae id postulant, facere potest his verbis»: Consilium, «Schema 180», 36.

A footnote to the second sentence reads: «Normaliter allocutio fiat vivo verbo». Consilium, «Schema 180», 36.

[98] «[88.] Filii dilectissimi, sedulo attendite, ad qualem in ecclesia gradum frater noster sit provehendus. Dominus noster Iesus Christus, a Patre missus, ut genus humanum redimeret, ipse in mundum duodecim misit apostolos qui Spiritus Sancti virtute releti evangelium praedicarent et gubernarent. Ut autem hoc munus usque ad finem saeculi permaneret, apostoli sibi adiutores elegerunt, quibus donum Spiritus sancti a Christo acceptum per impositionem manuum tradiderunt. Sic a generatione in generationem principalis traditio per successionem episcoporum continuam servata est et opus salvatoris usque hodie perseverat et crescit». Consilium, «Schema 180», 36.

> In the bishop, surrounded by his presbyters, there is present in the midst of you our Lord himself, Jesus Christ, the one who has been made high priest unto eternity. For he himself in the ministry of the bishop does not cease to preach the gospel and to administer to believers the mysteries of faith. He himself adds and incorporates new members to his body by the fatherly office of the bishop. He himself through the wisdom and prudence of the bishop leads you through earthly pilgrimage to eternal happiness [cf. Lumen Gentium 21/1][99].
> Therefore with grateful and joyous spirit accept our brother whom we, the bishops, through the imposition of hands intend to take into our college. Honor him as a minister of Christ and a steward of the mysteries of God [cf. 1 Corinthians 4:1], to whom witness to the gospel of truth [cf. Romans 15:16, Acts 20:24] and the service of the spirit and justice [cf. 2 Corinthians 3:8-9; Lumen Gentium 21/2] has been committed. Remember the words of Christ speaking to the apostles: «Who hears you, hears me, and who spurns you, spurns me. And who spurns me, spurns him who sent me» [Luke 10:16][100].
> Brother most beloved, chosen by the Lord so that you might be with him [cf. Mark 3:14], know yourself to be chosen from men and established for men in those things which are for God [cf. Hebrews 5:1]. For episcopacy is the name of a burden [or task], not of an honor, and it is more proper for a bishop to serve than to rule [cf. Augustine, De Civ. Dei 19, 19]. For the one who is greater, according to the precept of the Master, is to be as one who is lesser, and the one who is ruler, as a servant [cf. Luke 22:26]. Preach in favorable and unfavorable conditions, correct with all patience and wisdom [cf. 2 Timothy 4:25]. In offering prayers and sacrifi-

Schema 180, Addenda notes that «et omnes gentes in unum ovile congregatas sanctificarent» should be added after «praedicarent» and before «et gubernarent» in the second sentence above. Consilium, «Schema 180, Addenda», 3. A handwritten notation adds this text on page 36 of Schema 180.

[99] «[88.] In episcopo a presbyteris suis circumdato adest in medio vestri ipse Dominus noster Iesus Christus, pontifex factus in aeternum. Ipse enim in ministerio episcopi evangelium praedicare et credentibus mysteria fidei ministrare non desinit. Ipse paterno episcopi munere nova membra corpori suo addit et aggregat. Ipse episcopi sapientia et prudentia vos in peregrinatione terrena ad beatitudinem aeternam perducit». Consilium, «Schema 180», 36.

[100] «[88.] Grato igitur laetoque animo fratrem nostrum excipite, quem nos, episcopi, per impostitionem manuum in collegium nostrum cooptare intendimus. Illum honorate ut ministrum Christi et dispensatorem mysteriorum Dei, cui testificatio evangelii veritatis concreditur atque ministratio spiritus et iustitiae. Mementote verborum Christi dicentis apostolis: Qui vos audit me audit, et qui vos spernit me spernit. Qui autem me spernit, spernit eum qui me misit». Consilium, «Schema 180», 36-37.

A handwritten notation at the margin of the first sentence reads «Felici», probably indicating a concern raised by Cardinal Felici with reference to this sentence at the seventh plenary session of the Consilium.

ces for the people committed to you, pour out abundantly manifold grace from the fulness of the holiness of Christ [cf. Lumen Gentium 26]. In the church entrusted to you, be the steward of the mysteries of Christ, an overseer and a faithful guardian [cf. Christus Dominus 15/1]. Having been chosen by the Father so that you might govern his family, always be mindful of the Good Shepherd, who knows his sheep and whose sheep know him [cf. John 10:14], and who did not hesitate to give his spirit for his sheep [John 10:11][101].

Because God commits them to you, love all people [or Love all those whom God commits to you] with a fatherly and brotherly charity, first of all presbyters and deacons, your companions in the ministry of Christ, but also the poor and the weak, the wandering and the homeless. Encourage the faithful so that they might labor with you in the apostolic task, and do not refuse to listen to them freely [cf. Lumen Gentium 27/3]. Moreover concerning those who have not been incorporated into the one flock of Christ, have an unwearied concern, just as they have been commended to you by the Lord [cf. Lumen Gentium 27/3]. In the Catholic church, yoked by the bond of charity, never forget that you have been conjoined to the college of bishops, so that you should not cease to have concern for all churches and that you should freely come to the aid of those churches in need [cf. Lumen Gentium 23/1; Christus Dominus 6/1]. Therefore be solicitous for the entire flock in which the Holy Splrit places you to rule the church of God [cf. Acts 20:23], in the name and power of the Father, in whose strength you rule and shepherd the flock, and of his Son, Jesus Christ, whose office of Teacher, Priest, and Pastor you perform [cf. Lumen Gentium 21/2], and of the Holy Spirit, who gives life to the church of Christ and who strengthens our weakness with his power [Romans 8:26][102].

[101] «[88.] Electus, frater carissime, a Domino ut sis cum illo, cogita te ex hominibus esse assumptum et pro hominibus constitutum in iis quae sunt ad Deum. Episcopatus enim nomen est oneris, non honoris, et episcopum magis prodesse quam praeesse oportet. Nam qui maior est, secundum Magistri praeceptum, sit ut minor, et qui praecessor est, sicut ministrator. Praedica importune et opportune, increpa in omni patientia et doctrina. In precibus et sacrificiis pro populo tibi commisso oblatis, de plenitudine sanctitatis Christi multiformem gratiam abundanter effunde. In ecclesia tibi credita, mysteriorum Christi dispensator, moderator et custos esto fidelis. Electus a Patre ut familiam eius gubernes, memor esto semper boni Pastoris, qui oves suas cognoscit et quem oves cognoscunt, et qui animam ponere pro ovibus suis non dubitavit». Consilium, «Schema 180», 37.

Schema 180, Addenda notes that «oneris» in sentence two above should be replaced by «operis». Consilium, «Schema 180, Addenda», 3.

A handwritten notation on page 37 of Schema 180 repiaces «In precibus et sacrificiis ... oblatis» with «In oratione et in sacrificio ... oblato» and «effunde» with «studeas impetrare», probably indicating discussion on this sentence at the seventh plenary session of the Consilium.

[102] «[88.] Universos, quod[sic] Deus tibi committit, paterna atque fraterna dilige caritate, imprimis presbyteros et diaconos, tuos in ministerio Christi consortes, sed et pauperos ac debiles, peregrinos et advenas. Based on Botte's initiative[103], Schema 180 also provides the texts of the examination of the bishop-elect that Schema 150 had not supplied:

> After the address the bishop-elect rises and stands before the principal ordaining bishop, [who is] sitting [and wearing his] mitre. The principal ordaining bishop examines the bishop-elect with these words:
>
> «The ancient tradition of the holy Fathers teaches that the one who is to be ordained bishop is questioned before the people concerning his profession of the faith he is to preserve and of the office he is to fulfill.
>
> Therefore, most beloved brother, do you will to fulfill the office entrusted to us by the apostles and which is to be given to you through the imposition of our hands with the grace of the Holy Spirit until death»?
>
> The bishop-elect answers: «I do».
>
> Do you will to preach the Gospel of Christ faithfully and unwaveringly?
>
> Response: I do.
>
> Do you will to guard the pure and integral deposit of faith?
> Response: I do.

Christi ovili sunt aggregati, curam habe indefessam, tamquam tibi in Domino commendatis. In Ecclesia catholica, caritatis vinculo adunata, numquam obliviscaris te collegio episcoporum esse coniunctum, ita ut omnium ecclesiarum sollicitudinem ferre non desinas et ecclesiis auxilio egentibus libenter subvenias. Attende igitur universo gregi in quo Spiritus sanctus te ponit regere Dei ecclesiam, in nomine et potestate Patris, cuius vice gregem regis et pasces, Filii eius Iesu Christi, cuius munere Doctoris, Sacerdotis et Pastoris fungeris, et Spiritus sancti, qui ecclesiam Christi vivificat et infirmitatem nostram sua virtute confirmat». Consilium, «Schema 180», 38.

Schema 180, Addenda notes that «quod» in the first sentence above should be replaced by «quos» and fifth sentence with «reges». Consilium, «Schema 180, Addenda», 3.

Handwritten notations on page 38 of Schema 180 incorporate the changes indicated in Schema 180, Addenda and insert an «s» above the «m» of «curam» in the third sentence, cross out «et potestate» and «vice» in the fifth sentence, and add «in nomine» before both «Filii eius» and «Spiritus sancti» in the fifth sentence, all probably reflecting suggestions made at the seventh plenary session of the Consilium.

[103] «[T]he examination which precedes the ordination of the bishop ... is an old tradition which was kept by the Pontifical. The one consecrating asked a series of questions of the candidate before the people. Undoubtedly this venerable custom should be kept, but the examination aimed at the orthodoxy of the candidate in light of heresies today having only historical interest. We thought it preferable to have the examination cover the commitment of the bishop to the church and his people. I drafted a questionnaire which I submitted for review to my consultors. We proposed it to the Commission [i.e., the Consilium] which received it well and helped us finalize it». Botte, From Silence, 137.

Do you will to build up the Body of Christ — his Church — and to remain under the authority of the successor of blessed Peter the Apostle in unity with the order of bishops?

Response: I do.

Do you will, as a pious father, to sustain the people committed to you [or the holy people of God], one with your presbyterate [or with your fellow ministers, the presbyters and deacons], and to guide them into the way of salvation?

Response: I do.

The [following] question is posed to one who is to be ordained a non-residential bishop in place of this question:

Do you will, as a pious father, to sustain the people of God and to guide them into the way of salvation?

Response: I do.

Do you will, as a good shephed, to search for the sheep who perish [or the wandering sheep] and to incorporate them into the Lord's flock?

Response: I do.

Do you will to pray unceasingly to almighty God for the holy people and to fulfill with office of high priesthood without reproach?

Response: I do, with God helping.

Principal ordaining bishop: «May he who started in you — God — bring [you] to fulfillment[104]».

Schema 180 confirms Schema 150's prescriptions concerning the texts and gestures for the Litany, except that the ordaining bishops are directed to kneel rather than prostrate themselves[105]. Schema 180 likewise confirms Schema 150's directives for the laying on of hands, except that the assisting bishops are no longer directed to return to their places during the recitation of the ordination prayer[106].

The ordination prayer text proposed in Schema 150 is repeated with a minor emendation in Schema 180[107]; however a footnote raises the question of whether or not the «essential words» of the ordination prayer ought to be determined and, if so, what they should be[108]. Schema 180 originally directed that the proposed «essential words» would be chanted or recited by all the bishops extending their hands toward the bishop-elect and that the principal ordaining bishop would conclude the prayer alone, with his hands extended before his

Consecrator principalis:

"Qui coepit in te, Deus, ipse perficiat"». Consilium, «Schema 180», 38-39.

Schema 180, Addenda notes that «Vis plebem tibi commissam dirigere» should read: «Vis plebem Dei sanctam, cum comministris tuis presbyteris et diaconis, ut pius pater fovere et in viam salutis dirigere»? and that «Vis oves quae perierunt ... aggregare» should read: «Vis oves errantes, ut bonus pastor, requirere et ovili Dominico aggregare?» Consilium, «Schema 180, Addenda», 4.

In addition to recording the changes indicated in Schema 180, Addenda, handwritten notations on page 30 of Schema 180 cross out the question to be posed to a non-residential bishop and change the final sentence to read: «Qui coepit in te opus bonum, Deus, ipse perficiat».

[107] Schema 180 substitutes «normas» for «regulas» in the phrase «tu qui dedisti ... gratiae tuae» in the first sentence of the ordination prayer. Consilium, «Schema 180», 42. Cf. footnote 69 above.

chest; these gestures were excised by the time the Schema was discussed in the seventh plenary session of the Consilium[109].

Schema 180 confirms Schema 150's directive that the principal ordaining bishop should anoint the newly-ordained bishop's head with chrism after the book of the gospels has been removed from his shoulders after the recitation of the ordination prayer; it provides a text for the anointing which Schema 150 did not supply:

> May the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has willed to consecrate you to the high priesthood, [or May the God who has made you a partaker in the high priesthood of Christ], pour out on you the oil of mystical anointing and make you rich with the fruitfulness of spiritual blessing[110].

Schema 180 changes the text of the commission given to the ne-

Schema 180, Addenda corrects «sequentem partem» to read «sequens pars» and deletes «qui manus versus Electum extendunt» in the first sentence and deletes «extensis manibus ante pectus» in the second sentence. Consilium, «Schema 180, Addenda», 4.

In addition to deleting the texts indicated by Schema 180, Addenda, handwritten notations on pages 42 and 43 of Schema 180 omit the rubrics entirely and replace them with the sentence: «stet sine extensione manuum», possibly indicating part of the debate at the seventh plenary session of the Consilium.

[110] «98 Consecrator principalis S. Chrismate inungit caput ordinati coram se genuflexi dicens:

"Deus et Pater Domini nostri Iesu Christi, qui te ad summum sacerdotium voluit consecrare, ipse te mysticae delibationis liquore perfundat, et spiritualis benedictionis ubertate foecundet"».

A footnote explains both the choice of this text and the omission of the antiphon «Unguentum in capite»: «Formula nunc in usu ("Unguatur et consecretur caput tuum coelesti benedictione, in Ordine Pontificali, In nomine Patris...") nimis communiter de gratia in ordinatione accepta loquitur. Formula a nobis proposita fundamentum habet in formula ad unctionem capitis ("Deus et Pater Domini nostri Iesu Christi, qui te ad Pontificatus sublimari voluit dignitatem, ipse te Chrismate et mysticae delibationis liquore perfundat, et spiritualis benedictionis ubertate foecundet") primo in Pontificali Rimano[sic]-germanico testata...; nobis visum est, hanc formulam aliqo[sic] modo simplificandam et adiunctis nostri temporis accomodandam esse. Schema 180, Addenda indicates that «Deus, qui summo Christi sacerdotio participem te effecit» replaces «Deus et Pater... voluit consecrare» in the text given above. Consilium, «Schema 180, Addenda», 4.

wly-ordained bishop when he is presented with the book of the gospels: «Receive the Gospel and preach the word of God in favorable and unfavorable conditions, in all patience and wisdom»[111].

Schema 180 slightly modifies the text spoken by the principal ordaining bishop as he gives an episcopal ring to the newly-ordained bishop[112] and provides a text for the presentation of the pastoral staff that Schema 150 had not supplied:

> Receive the staff, sign of pastoral office, so that you might console the weak, make the tottering strong, correct the depraved, and direct the righteous into the way of eternal salvation[113].

The document also confirms Schema 150's mandate that the mitre should be given to the newly-ordained bishop in silence[114]. Schema 180, Addenda changes the order of these three explicatory rites from the giving of the ring and pastoral staff and imposition of the mitre to the imposition of the mitre, followed by the giving of the ring and pastoral staff; no reason is given for the change in the order of these rites[115].

Schema 180 confirms Schema 150's instructions for enthroning

[111] «99 Tunc Consecrator principalis tradit ordinato librum Evangeliorum dicens:

"Accupe [sic] Evangelium et verbum Dei praedica opportune, importune, in omni patientia et doctrina".

Postea diaconus resumit librum Evangeliorum et reponit in legile».

A footnote gives the justification for this text: «... Formula a nobis proposita respicit ex una parte episcopos non residentiales (qui non habent "populum sibi commissum"), ex altera parte desiderium Coetus Relatorum ... qui postulavit locutionem magis biblicam (cf. 2 Tim. 4,2)». Consilium, «Schema 180», 44. Cf. footnote 71 above.

Schema 180, Addenda corrects «Accupe» in the commission text to «Accipe». Consilium, «Schema 180, Addenda», 4.

[112] Schema 180 omits the «ut» after «anulum» and before «fidei signaculum». Consilium, «Schema 180», 45. Cf. footnote 72 above.

[113] «101 Deinde Consecrator principalis tradit Ordinato baculum pastoralem in manum dexteram dicens:

"Accipe baculum, pastoralis muneris signum, ut debiles consolides, titubantes confirmes, pravos corrigas, rectos dirigas in viam salutis aeternae"».

A footnote explains the choice of this text: «Formula a nobis... proposita (in Pontificali romano-germanico primo testata... = ergo similis aetatis quam formula nunc vigens) secundum desiderata Patrum Consilii... aliquo modo adiunctis nostri temporis accomodata est». Consilium, «Schema 180», 45.

[114] A footnote declares: «Inter insignia episcopalia differentia exstat: baculus pastoralis et anulus stricto sensu munus episcopale exprimunt; hoc munus expressis verbis in formulis comitantibus in lucem deducitur; mitra autem sensu latiore insigne est; per impositionem mitrae munus episcopale nullo modo clarior fit et consequenter per formulam comitantem clarior fieri non potest. Quapropter proponimus nullam formulam ad impositionem mitrae». Consilium, «Schema 180», 45.

the newly-ordained bishop[116]; it directs that the kiss of peace should be exchanged only among the bishops[117]; and it provides some texts to be chanted while the mitre is imposed and the kiss of peace is given[118].

4.4. Proposed texts and ceremonies for the Liturgy of the Eucharist

As did Schema 150, Schema 180 directs that the eucharistic liturgy follow the norms established for concelebrated Masses with some minor modifications[119]. It slightly emends the text of the proper insertion into the Roman Canon («Hanc igitur») given in Schema 150[120]. It directs that the «Te Deum laudamus» may be sung either before the celebrant prays the Postcommunion text or after the final blessing[121]. It clarifies and slightly modifies the rubrics and text of the alternatives to the standard pontifical benediction[122]. Finally it simplifies the exit procession[123].

Si autem ordinatio fit inter altare et cancellos, consecrator principalis deducat ordinatum ad cathedram (vel ad sedem ad dexteram cathedrae, si episcopus non in ecclesia propria ordinatus est) episcopis consecrantibus eos sequentibus». Consilium, «Schema 180», 46. Cf. footnote 73 above.

[119] Cf. footnote 75.

[120] The phrase «divinis exsequatur effectibus» in Schema 150 (cf. footnote 77 above) reads «divinis effectibus exsequatur» in Schema 180. In addition a handwritten notation adds «N». after «pro hoc famulo tuo» in the same text, probably reflecting a suggestion made at the seventh plenary session of the Consilium.

4.5. Appendix concerning the episcopal ordination prayer

Schema 180 provides an extended justification for the proposed prayer of ordination for bishops contained within the document:

> In this appendix two documents pertaining to the prayer of ordination of a bishop are translated. In our schema we have proposed in the place of the preface in the Roman Pontifical, a prayer which is given in the Apostolic Tradition of Hippolytus. The version that we propose ... arises from three texts: a Latin version, an Ethiopic version, and the Greek text from the Epitome of the Apostolic Constitutions. We propose this text not only because it is very old and very beautiful, but because it has been proven through the centuries by the custom of the Eastern Churches. For in the Antiochene patriarchate the prayer of consecration of a patriarch is taken for the most part from the prayer of the Apostolic Tradition, and likewise, in the Alexandrine [liturgical family] the prayer of consecration of a bishop[124].
>
> So that the Fathers could examine the state of the question, we here translate the two prayers. Words or at least meanings taken from the Apostolic Tradition are underlined. Thus one can discover that the principal source of the two prayers is the prayer of Hippolytus and that likewise the very sentences of Hippolytus are preserved in one or the other of the documents or in both. On the other hand, it will be apparent that the additions made by the Eastern editors contribute nothing to the clarity or beauty of the prayer. Above all they do not always understand the original text. So, when speaking of the norms of the Church given «through the word of grace» in the mind of Hippolytus the scripture of the Old

Si consecrator principalis praesidet liturgiae Eucharisticae, dicat:

"Benedicat tibi dominus custodiensque te, sicut te voluit super populum suum constituere pontificem, ita in praesenti saeculo felicem et aeternae felicitatis faciat te esse consortem.

Clerum ac populum, quem sua voluit opitulatione ["in tua sanctione" is here omitted] congregari,... Quod ipse praestare dignetur». Consilium, «Schema 180», 48. Cf. footnote 79 above.

[123] «110 Data benedictione omnes processionaliter per ecclesiam revertuntur in secretarium». Consilium, «Schema 180», 48.

[124] «In hac appendice traduntur duo documenta ad orationem ordinationis episcopi pertinentia. In schemate nostro proposuimus, loco praefationis Pontificalis Romani, orationem quae in Traditione apostolica sancti Hippolyti datur. Versio quam proponimus ... tribus testibus nititur: versio latina, aethiopica, et textus graecus ex Epitome Constitutionum apostolicarum. Hunc textum proponimus non tantum quia antiquissimus et pulcherrimus est, sed quia a saeculis usu Orientalium probatus est. In Antiocheno enim patriarchatu oratio consecrationis patriarchae maxima ex parte ab oratione Traditionis apostolicae provenit, et item, in Alexandrino, oratio consecrationis episcopi». Consilium, «Schema 180», 50.

Testament is meant. The church is the new Israel and the norms given in scripture are applied by law in the election of the bishop. God never leaves his people without a ruler nor his sanctuary without a priest. The bishop is the ruler and priest of the new Israel. And the things handed down concerning the office of bishop in the Apostolic Tradition are faithfully preserved in the prayers. On the one hand, it is to be regretted that a prayer so ancient and beautiful should be preserved under forms so derivative and incomplete in the liturgy, and, on the other hand, it is to be desired from an ecumenical point of view that the apostolic office of bishops should be expressed in the same way in the West and in the East in the prayer of ordination. Thus the unity of the three ancient patriarchates, Rome, Antioch and Alexandria, is affirmed. The Roman church comes near to the East and at the same time recovers its own proper tradition, when the Roman prayer is edited[125].

The texts that follow should be compared with that which we have translated [cf. section 3.3. and footnote 69][126].

1) Prayer of Consecration for a Patriarch in the rite of the Maronites and of the West Syrians

God, you have done and established everything in power and have founded the habitable earth by the concept of your mind; you have adorned a crown for everything made by you; you have given to us knowledge of truth and have manifested to us that good spirit of yours; you sent your only beloved Son, our immaculate Savior, for our redemption. God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Father of mercies and God of all consolation: you dwell in the pure heights; you are most high, worthy of praise, awe-inspiring, great and seeing all things: you know all things before they come to be, before whom all things already were before they should be;

[125] «Ut Patres statum quaestionis conspicere possint, hic tradimus has duas preces. Verba vel saltem sensus a Traditione apostolica provenientes sublineantur. Sic patet fontem praecipuum duarum precum esse orationem Hippolyti et item sententias praecipuas Hippolyti in uno vel altero documento, vel in utroque esse servatas. Ex altera parte apparet additiones a redactoribus orientalibus factas nihil ad claritatem nec ad pulchritudinem orationis contulisse. Insuper textum originalem non semper intellexerunt. Sic, quando agitur de normis Ecclesiae datis "per verbum gratiae", in mente Hippolyti designatur Scriptura antiqui Testamenti. Ecclesia est novus Israel et normae in Scriptura datae iure applicantur in electione episcopi. Deus numquam reliquit populum suum sine principe nec sanctuarium sine sacerdote. Episcopus est princeps et sacerdos novi Israel. Quae autem de munere episcopi in Traditione apostolica tradita sunt fideliter in orationibus servata sunt. Ex una parte, dolendum est precem tam antiquam et pulchram sub formis tantum derivatis et incompletis in liturgia servari, et ex altera parte optandum est, sub respectu oecumenico, ut munus apostolicum episcoporum eodem modo in Occidente et in Oriente exprimatur in oratione consecrationis. Sic affirmatur unitas trium antiquiorum patriarchatuum, Romae, Antiochiae et Alexandriae. Ecclesia Romana ad Orientem accedit et simul traditionem propriam recuperat, cum oratio Romae redacta sint». [128] «2) Oratio consecrationis episcopi in ritu Alexandrino.

Qui es, Domine Deus omnipotens, Pater Domini nostri et Dei nostri et Salvatoris Iesu Christi, unus solus ingenitus, sine principio, nullum regem habens super te, qui es semper et ante saecula, infinitus et solus altissimus, solus sapiens, solus bonus, invisibilis in natura tua, principii expers et apud quem est scientia incomprehensibilis et incomparabilis, cognoscens occulta, cognoscens omnia antequam fiant, qui donasti statuta ecclesiastica per unigenitum Filium tuum D. N. I. C., qui constituisti sacerdotes ab initio ut assisterent populo tuo, qui non reliquisti locum sanctum tuum sine ministerio, qui complacuisiti tibi glorificari in iis quos elegisti. Tu iterum nunc effunde virtutem Spiritus tui principalis quem donasti apostolis sanctis tuis in nomine tuo. Da igitur hanc eamdem gratiam super servum tuum quem elegisti in episcopum, ut pascat gregem tuum sanctum et ut sit tibi in ministrum irreprehensibilem, orans ante benignitatem tuam die ac nocte, congregans numerum salvandorum, offerens tibi dona in sanctis ecclesiis. Ita, Pater omnipotens, per Christum tuum, da ei participationem Spiritus sancti tui, ut sit ei potestas dimittendi peccata secundum mandatum eius ad sanctuarium [sic] et solvendi vincula omnia ecclesiastica, faciendi domus novas orationis et sanctificandi altaria; et placeat tibi in mansuetudine et corde humili, offerens tibi in innocentia et irreprehensibilitate sacrificium incruentum, mysterium huius Testamenti novi, in odorem suavitatis». Consilium, «Schema 180», 52.
